

G-Men Join in Illinois Hunt For Man Sought As Bank Bandit

Suspect Escapes in Running Battle With Police

FOUR ARE CAPTURED
Officer Believes Prisoners Had No Part In Crimes

Chicago — (U) — Federal agents joined police today in pursuit of a man they believed to be Harry W. Walters, 35, a Dallas, Texas, badman wanted for bank robbery at Bradley, Ark., who escaped in a running gunfight with suburban Summit policemen.

Daniel M. Ladd, agent in charge of the G-men's office here, said he assigned his men to the chase after being notified by the local officers. An automobile carrying five persons speeding past the Summit police station started the pursuit. Chief John Van Ort took after it, exchanging shots. The car stopped abruptly and the men believed to be Walters escaped on foot.

Chief Van Ort took prisoner the other four who gave their names as Robert Warren, 28, and Theodore W. Lee, 39, both of Coal City, Ill., and Lorraine Wilson, 20, and Neal Hearn, 20, both of Shreveport, La. The chief said there were four rifles, two pistols and a shotgun in the car.

Accepts Story
Chief Van Ort said he accepted the story of Warren and Lee that they were merely casual acquaintances out for a ride, and that they did not know the car was laden with guns or piloted by an alleged bank robber.

The fugitive apparently stole an automobile from a passing motorist. Police traced him back south to Joliet, Ill., where the party had congregated last night at a tourist camp.

A friend of the fugitive had stayed at the Joliet camp when the party started for Chicago, police said. The girls, they said, identified this man as Floyd Garland Hamilton. Police records showed Hamilton, also a former convict and wanted with Walters for the Arkansas bank robbery.

The man believed to be Walters got back to the Joliet camp, picked up his friend and escaped ahead of pursuing state and county policemen, they said. State police set up by road a highway blockade as far south as St. Louis.

Describe Movements
Chief Van Ort said questioning produced this story of movements of the party:

Miss Wilson and Miss Hearn met the men called Walters and Hamilton in Shreveport and started a tour with them northward.

At Coal City the girls met Warren, a bartender, and Lee, a salesman, who were on vacation, and introduced them to the other men at Joliet. Warren and Lee offered to show the group the "sights of Chicago." Except for "Hamilton," they all started from Joliet, the girls wearing riding clothes. Their high speed set policemen on their trail.

Walters, who is wanted by the federal bureau of investigation, has a criminal record dating back to 1920. Van Ort said. His last crime, according to F.B.I. records, was the robbery of the bank of Bradley at Bradley, Ark., on June 7, 1933. The records show he escaped April 30 from the sheriff's office at Montague, Texas, where he was being held on a charge of automobile theft.

Thar's Gold in Them Thar Hens

Finding of 33 pieces of gold in the gizzard of a hen has started a regular gold rush in Taunetown, Tasmania, and vicinity. George Town, who bought and killed the fowl, has joined others in trying to locate the source of the hen's gold supply. That recalls the story of the farmer who killed the hen that laid the golden egg, and cut down production to exactly nothing. Let that be a lesson to you. If you have anything of value, don't destroy it — sell it through Post-Crescent Want-Ads.

There's gold to be found in Post-Crescent Want-Ads. No matter what you have to sell, you'll find a ready market for it there. This one produced results in a hurry:

Company Officials Tell of Weapons Kept in Arsenal

Youngstown Sheet and Tube Chief Testifies at Senate Hearing

Washington — (U) — Youngstown Sheet and Tube company officials testified today that during the 1937 "Little Steel" strike, the company's arsenal contained $10,000 worth of tear gas, eight machine guns, 452 revolvers, 314 pistols and 190 shotguns.

Frank Purnell, gray-haired president of the steel company, told the senate civil liberties committee the tear gas was a holdover from 1934 preparations for a strike that did not materialize.

Chairman LaFollette (P-Wis.) questioned Purnell as to how workers must have felt in the knowledge the company had such a large arsenal.

"I think a certain amount is necessary," from the demonstration we had in 1916," the steel executive testified. He was referring to a riot in East Youngstown, now known as Campbell, where a large section of the town was destroyed amid disorders.

Bought Guns in 1916
White-haired J. M. Woltz, superintendent of company police at Youngstown for 25 years, said most of the guns were bought in 1916 after the riot. The eight machine guns were buried in a coke pile during the 1937 "Little Steel" strike and subsequently were destroyed, he said.

Explaining the tear gas precautions in 1934, Purnell said the company became concerned because of reports of a possible strike and spent $52,115 to get ready. He introduced pictures of the 1916 property damage to justify the company's action.

When the 1937 strike came, Purnell said, he "personally advised" Woltz to "put the machine guns away and not to have them available for the itchy fingers of any excited men."

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company has had collective bargaining in its plants since 1913 when an employee representative plan was installed under the direction of Mackenzie King, later premier of Canada. Purnell testified.

English Professor Loses Life When Boat Capsizes

Superior — (U) — Frank Vitz, 48, professor of English at Superior State Teachers' college, drowned last night in Lake Amnicon when a small upset the motorboat in which he and four youths were riding. The four boys, including Vitz's son, John, 16, were rescued.

Block and Tackle Save 2 Soldiers Marooned 5 Days on Canyon Ledge

Marfa, Texas — (U) — Two soldiers, hoisted by block and tackle from a narrow canyon ledge on which they were marooned five days after attempting to ride flood waters of the Rio Grande on automobile inner tubes, agreed today "another day and we'd have had to jump back in the river."

Private Clarence Hansen of Santa Fe, N. M., his feet blistered, and his endurance almost gone, remained last night at the top of the cliff to which he and Sergeant Clyde Ryberg of Minneapolis were hauled from the shelf 1,500 feet below.

Ryberg walked 10 miles to a Mexican settlement where he obtained automobile transportation to Ft. D. A. Russell.

He told how he, Hansen and private Harry Buckman of Paris, Texas, were caught in a whirlpool just after they entered the canyon

London — (U) — Attorneys for the former Barbara Hutton, five-and-ten heiress, and her estranged husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Revenlow, announced today the couple had reached an agreement for a separation.

The count was granted "parental rights" toward Lance, their 2-year-old son. They entitle him to make certain final decisions affecting his son's education, religion and career. The decree of separation already has been signed both by the count and countess. It is subject to approval by the Danish minister of justice but would be valid both under Danish and English law.

Count Court is Danish and the countess has adopted her husband's nationality. Thus the Woolworth heiress and the spruce, dignified Danish nobleman she married in Reno, Nev., May 14, 1935, came to the parting of their ways.

Amicable Agreement
The separation was a far more amicable "agreement to disagree" than had been foreshadowed by the sensational hearings in a Bow street magistrate's court, the guards around their home and the count's promise not to see his wife.

In one of the hearings, the countess' lawyer said her husband had threatened to give her "three years of hell with headlines" and to "shoot like a dog" an unidentified London society man.

The count waived any rights he might have had under Danish law to one-half of the "common property of both parties."

Since the countess may not always "preserve Danish nationality" she decided to settle "an appropriate sum on Lance forthwith and the settlement has been executed with the count as one of the trustees."

This was disclosed in a formal announcement.

Provision for Child
Provision was made that "while the child remains of tender years the countess shall have care of it for the greater part of the year and when he becomes of school age he shall spend one-half of his holidays with the count and the other half with the countess."

The announcement was made by the attorneys acting for both—Clifford Turner and Company for the countess and Denton, Hall and Burgen for the count.

The agreement said no settlement had been made on any other party—meaning the heiress had settled no part of her $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 fortune on her husband.

It was recalled that the heiress' attorney in the Bow street hearing had said the count once demanded the price of $5,000,000 and the child in return for a divorce.

The nobleman, Countess Barbara's second titled European husband, was represented then as being "insulted by an offer of a mere $250,000."

The day before her wedding to the count, the countess was divorced in Reno from Prince Alexis Aidiwan, who was killed later in an automobile accident.

Demand Probe of Navigation Body

Officials of Four States Join in Move for Investigation

Milwaukee — (U) — Attorneys general of Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and Indiana today agreed upon consolidation of efforts to demand a federal investigation of the North Atlantic shipping Conference, trade association of seaboard navigation companies.

Richard F. Malia, executive secretary of the Great Lakes Harbors association, was directed by the attorneys general to draft a formal petition to be filed with the United States Maritime Commission at Washington.

Several speakers during a hearing which closed yesterday accused the North Atlantic Conference of crushing the development of Great Lakes-trans-Atlantic freight service by undertaking to regulate traffic in the midwest.

The charges were denied by the final speaker, James Sinclair of New York, chairman of the Trans-Atlantic Associated Freight Conference, which is associated with the North Atlantic. Sinclair, termed the charges "ridiculous."

At the time Fox was appointed counsel for the Home Owners' Loan corporation, he held the assembly floor leadership.

Crete Rebels Surrender as Revolt Fails

Island Governor Tells Greek Dictator Order Has Been Restored

SAILORS IN UPRISING
Act While Most of Garrison Is Sent to Northern Greece

Athens — (U) — A revolt against the regime of General John Metaxas, dictator of Greece, apparently was crushed quickly today.

The governor of the island of Crete, where the uprising broke out, cabled Metaxas that order had been restored in Canea, the Crete capital.

All rebel-held government buildings have been reoccupied by authorities, he reported, and the revolutionists have surrendered.

Four hundred armed men, reported to be sailors, effected the coup by taking advantage of a weakened garrison at Canea. Most of the troops there had been sent to northern Greece to provide vacation relief for other garrisons.

The seat of government in Crete was moved from Canea to Candia by one of the measures approved by King George to suppress the uprising.

The governor of Crete cabled to Athens that "the islanders strongly disapprove the rebels' action."

Premier Metaxas ordered army, navy and air forces to the island. Communication was suspended, and ships were not permitted to depart for the island.

Crushed Revolt in 1935
Greece's last revolt, in the spring of 1935, led by the late Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, was crushed after bloody naval and land engagements.

Venizelos, a native of Crete, started his revolt there. The capital, population about 26,000, is an important port.

Premier Metaxas, who became premier April 28, 1936, established dictatorial powers on Aug. 5 to which he said was an attempted communist revolt.

Long Delay Seen In Sidley Inquest

Decision on Motion by Executors to be Made Before Further Action

Toronto — (Canadian Press) — A court fight over the legal propriety of an inquest into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley resulted yesterday in a delay in the inquest, scheduled to be resumed Aug. 2.

C. A. Macdonald of the Ontario governor general's department said the inquest, in recess since last Tuesday, would not be reopened until a decision is handed down on a motion by the four Sidley executors to halt the proceedings.

Hearings on the executors' motion was postponed until next Thursday, developing the likelihood the inquest would not be resumed until September, if at all.

The executors sought to halt the inquest on the grounds Ontario authorities were proceeding without legal authority, since the body of the heiress to the Horlick malted milk fortune was out of the territorial jurisdiction when the inquiry was ordered.

When the coroner ordered the inquest to proceed, after Mrs. Sidley had been buried at Racine, Wis., he was served with notice of the action brought by the executors yesterday.

Filed with the notice was an affidavit by W. Perkins Bull, Toronto attorney at whose home Mrs. Sidley died July 6.

Bull related that permission was refused Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner, and Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former lieutenant governor of Ontario, to examine Mrs. Sidley 30 hours before she died.

Jerome Fox Resigns as State HOLC Counsel

Milwaukee — (U) — Jerome Fox of Chilton, Democratic candidate for governor, announced today his resignation as state counsel for the HOLC, which he had been connected since 1933.

At the time Fox was appointed counsel for the Home Owners' Loan corporation, he held the assembly floor leadership.

The Democratic nominee, in announcing the beginning of his campaign next week, said: "I intend to conduct a vigorous campaign which will cover every section of the state. The Democratic party this year has a liberal platform to offer the people and the candidates on this platform undoubtedly will receive the approval of President Roosevelt."

Martin Hits at Defense, Then Adjourns Trial

Accuses Counsel of 'Deliberate Delay and Abuse Of Procedural Rules'

TO RESUME AUGUST 6
Asks Postal Inspectors to Investigate 'Poison Pen' Letters

Detroit — (U) — Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, accusing defense counsel of "deliberate delay and wilful abuse of procedural rules," today adjourned the trial of four suspended U.A.W.A. vice presidents until Saturday, Aug. 6.

The officers were accused by Martin of conspiring with Communist party leaders to disrupt the automobile union. Their trial before the union's executive board started Monday.

Martin said today that a woman witness, who was to have related an alleged "deal" to turn control of the Wayne county union of Labor's non-Partisan League over to Communists, had "received a mysterious telephone call, threatening her if she testified."

Martin said she was a former Communist party member who heard at a Communist meeting details of a "deal" Martin said was made with Richard T. Frankenstein, one of the suspended U.A.W.A. officers. Frankenstein is county chairman of the league.

Will Offer Affidavit
Martin said any testimony she gave would be presented in an affidavit, and that her name would not be revealed even to the executive board hearing the trial.

During more than four days of the trial, conducted behind closed doors at the U.A.W.A. international headquarters, bickering and accusing factions has prevented the hearing from progressing much beyond preliminary stages.

Before today's adjournment was taken, Martin disclosed he had asked postal inspectors to investigate what he termed "poison pen" letters sent to locals of the CIO union.

One of the letters, Martin said, was introduced as evidence yesterday at the secret hearing.

Martin suspended the vice presidents—Richard T. Frankenstein, Walter N. Wells, Ed Hilt and Wyndham Mortimer—and George F. Adles, secretary-treasurer who already has been expelled, June 13 for alleged "communist activities" and attempts to "disrupt" the union.

Charge Concerning Funds
One of the nine formal charges against the four is that they sought to divert international union funds by asking locals to send their dues to Adles after he was disciplined instead of his successor.

Maurice Sugar, counsel for the men on trial, said the executive board sent John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, a telegram expressing regret his name had been linked in testimony with a group accused of trying to turn the U.A.W.A. over to the Communist party.

The message was said to have reaffirmed Martin's loyalty to the CIO chief.

Deny Appointment Of Ekern Imperils Democratic System

Madison — (U) — Attorney General Orland S. Loomis, Special Counsel Walter D. Corrigan, Sr., and Ralph M. Hoyt of Milwaukee, in a brief filed today, said the democratic system of government is not periled by Governor LaFollette's power, sustained by the state supreme court, to appoint Herman L. Ekern as lieutenant governor.

The brief answered the petition of William R. Rubin, counsel for James W. Martin of Bensenville, for the return of the matter.

If Ekern's appointment remains valid, Rubin had contended, any governor can tempt a lieutenant governor to resign by offering him a lucrative job, fill the position with a man of his own choice, then resign as governor, leaving his own appointee as the state's chief executive.

Loomis said this was a matter for the people through their constitution or their legislature, to decide, and since the decision already has been made, the court was correct in upholding the governor's power of appointment.

Frank J. Hogan, Washington attorney, was elected president of the association to succeed Arthur T. Vanderbilt. Thomas B. Gay of Richmond, Va., was elected chairman of the house of delegates, administrative and policy-forming body of the association, to succeed George Maurice Morris of Washington.

National Income Is Expected to Top 61 Billion

Total Figure Likely to Cut Estimate on Reduction Nearly in Two

Washington — (U) — Government experts said today the 1938 national income was virtually certain to exceed $61,000,000,000.

If it does, President Roosevelt's estimate of a $12,000,000,000 reduction below the 1937 figure will have been cut nearly in two. In his budget message to congress, Mr. Roosevelt predicted a drop from $68,000,000,000 in 1937 to $56,000,000,000 in 1938.

The commerce department estimated yesterday the total income for the first half of 1938 was $30,630,000,000. Ordinarily income in the latter half of the year equals the first half.

Department officials said the prospective $7,000,000,000 reduction from 1937 might be lessened still further. Usually income payments fall off in mid-summer to a seasonal low point, but this year they have been moving upward, in contrast to the seasonal trend, since the middle of June.

Income Payments Cut
Nevertheless, the department said income payments for all of June were 12 per cent less than for the same month of last year.

Income payments to salaried employees and wage earners, which had dipped sharply from about $3,900,000,000 a month last fall, have been fairly stable since January at a monthly average of about $3,450,000,000.

Incomes of other kinds, in contrast, displayed no material reduction in the last half of 1937 but have fallen off rapidly since January.

The contraction of employees' incomes, the commerce department found, was concentrated in commodity-producing industries. In the mining, construction and manufacturing industries, compensation was 20 per cent lower in June than in January and 25 per cent below June, 1937.

June pay rolls in trade and transportation were 4 per cent lower than in January and 9 per cent below last fall's peak.

Hughes Lands His Plane in Chicago

Welcomed With 3 Companions by Crowd Of 11,000

Chicago — (U) — Howard Hughes brought his world-circling plane down to a precise landing at Chicago municipal airport today, four hours and seven minutes after he took off from Floyd Bennett field in New York.

A crowd of enthusiastic Chicago greetors estimated at 11,000 by police cheered lustily and part of them broke through police lines to surround the ship.

Hughes and three of his companions on his recent "round the world" flight stayed in the plane for 15 minutes while police and airport attendants struggled with the yelling throng.

A flying cordon of motorcycle policemen finally came out to force the crowd back to Mayor Edward J. Kelly and other officials could extend the city's formal welcome.

Lieutenant Thomas I. Thurlow, co-navigator on the world flight, came in early, flying an army plane from Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, where he is stationed.

55TH BIRTHDAY

Rome — (U) — Premier Benito Mussolini had something today that he didn't like—his fifty-fifth birthday. Italian newspapers, usually lyric about any occasion involving the duke, were silent; in the Mussolinian concept, fascist Italy personifies youth; Mussolini personifies fascism; hence any notice of his advancing age is taboo.

Drowns in Lake After Rescuing Swim Companion

Body of Bruno Antezak, 25, Cicero, Ill., Recovered at Waupaca

Waupaca — Bruno Antezak, 25, 1308 Fifty-Seventh street, Cicero, Ill., drowned in Columbian lake here late yesterday after saving a woman companion who became exhausted while they were swimming 300 feet from shore.

Antezak and Miss Verdilla Sayers, Chicago, were swimming around a raft near the Casino when Miss Sayers became tired and her companion towed her to the raft and then sank.

Miss Sayers did not immediately realize that her companion, who was an expert swimmer, was drowning, but when he failed to reappear in a few moments she called for help.

Three employees of the Casino and Ted Wenzel, Marshfield, physical education director in the public schools of that city, responded and the latter dove from the boat and brought the body to the surface from 20 feet of water.

Efforts to revive Antezak with the recently purchased inhalator of the town of Farmington failed. Sheriff D. R. Campbell and Motorcycle Officer Jack Polzin were aided in their attempt to revive the victim by Major Waldo Hanson, Wisconsin Veterans home; Miss Ruth Buback, Cadol, who is camped at Camp Cleghorn; Tom Hanson, Veterans home; Herbert J. Neau, Eau Claire; Harold Markworth, Des Plaines, Ill.; Al Martin, Chain O' Lakes; Dr. Sam Salan and Abe Rice, Waupaca.

Antezak and Miss Sayers were visiting at the home of her father, Bert Sayers, whose cottage, "Sleepy Hollow," is on Columbian lake.

Pope Pius XI Criticizes Radicalism As Fascists Push Their New Doctrine

Castel Gandolfo, Italy — (U) — A Vatican City news service quoted Pope Pius XI today as terming radicalism and exaggerated nationalism "barriers raised between men and men—people and people."

It said the pontiff's declaration was part of a long speech delivered yesterday at Castel Gandolfo to a group of students of the College of Propagation of Faith.

The pope also was quoted as defending Catholic Action, saying that someone had said that "between Catholic Action and the fascist party there exists an incurable doctrinal divergence."

His concluding remarks were reported as:

"Who injures Catholic Action, injures the pope and who injures the pope, dies." This was interpreted as meaning "dies spiritually."

The pontiff's remarks, in which he stressed again the "universality" of the Catholic faith, were uttered as the fascist regime pushed a vigorous campaign in favor of its recently-promulgated doctrine of race.

On July 14 a group of professors published a report in which the Italian people were declared to be of Aryan origin. It asserted Jews "do not belong to the Italian race."

The report was issued under the auspices of the ministry of popular culture.

Last Monday the fascist party secretary, Achille Starace, declared the principal task of the ministry of popular culture in 1939 would be "el

WDA Applies for $26,000,000 for River Projects

Fox and Wisconsin Developments are Proposed in State

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Secretary Ickes said today PWA here has received application from the Wisconsin Development authority for grants and loans for a $26,000,000 development of Wisconsin rivers for water power and other purposes. The application seeks a 45 per cent grant and a 55 per cent loan. Deputy Administrator Gray said, and covers projects on several streams.

The project contemplates a large reservoir on the Eau Claire river, a diversion canal and tunnel down river to take part of the water into the Fox river, and three hydro-electric plants.

Three Hydro Plants
The hydro plants would be at Knowlton, where the Eau Claire river flows into the Wisconsin, at Baten, further down the river, and at Germantown, 12 miles further down. They would generate an estimated 275,000,000 kilowatt hours of power.

The project would create the very large reservoir on the Eau Claire, and part of the water stored there would go on into the Wisconsin. A present dam would be extended and raised to create a larger reservoir on the Wisconsin. By means of a canal, water stored there would be diverted to the Eau Claire reservoir.

At Portage, water would be diverted from the Wisconsin to the Fox river by a diversion tunnel.

The application for the state project was filed by the Hydro-Electric Power company, Wisconsin Rapids. It calls for improvement of navigation and recreational facilities, as well as power development.

WAA Organization Is Completed at Madison

Madison — (P) Complete organization with passage of by-laws, selection of officers and office space and adoption of a broad policy creed, today put the Wisconsin Agriculture Authority in full swing.

Wilbur G. Carlson, general manager of the WAA said the authority will pursue a policy of "picking up where the department of agriculture and markets leaves off." The educational work in cooperation with farm cooperatives, marketing agencies and other organizations dealing with farm problems will be the main objectives.

Alleviation of the economic distress which threatens farmers and pea canners as a result of a heavy crop of peas this year, will comprise the first big job. The manager disclosed that the directors have placed full power in his hands to deal with the problem.

Carlson proposed to send agents into local areas to push a sales campaign for Wisconsin peas.

Senator Holt to Ask Upper House to Oppose Third Term for Roosevelt

Washington — (P) — Senator Holt (D-W.Va.) an administration critic, said today he would ask the 1939 senate to express formal opposition to a third term for President Roosevelt.

He had intended to introduce such a resolution during the last session, he added, but had held it up "pending proper time."

Holt explained the resolution would be similar to one which the senate passed, 56 to 23, while Calvin Coolidge was president in 1928.

40-Hour Week and Wage Adjustments Asked by Carriers

Men Delivering on Rural Routes Adopt Resolutions at Parley

A 5-day week and 8-hour day with a basic salary equal to that of city carriers and clerks, was recommended in a resolution adopted by the Wisconsin Federation of Rural Letter Carriers at its annual convention this week in Fond du Lac.

Chester Reisenweber of Appleton was one of the men elected to the executive committee at the convention. Mrs. Reisenweber was named vice president of the ladies' auxiliary.

Twelve proposals were adopted as part of the legislative program the organization will advocate. Among them was a recommendation that the basic salary on rural routes be determined by the amount of time required to complete the carriers' duty each day rather than by the mileage covered.

Equipment maintenance of six cents per mile per day was asked. It was also recommended that submasters should be selected by the postmaster and paid the rate of 85 cents an hour, including one hour for vehicle care.

A non-competitive examination for substitute carriers on completion of five years of service and the adoption of a widow's annuity were advocated.

Officers named at the meeting were Jerry Mason, Ford Atkinson, president; Elmer J. Fuchs, Sheboygan, vice president; James J. Crowe, Manitowish, secretary treasurer.

Czechs and Germans Live Peacefully Together on Powder Keg of Mid-Europe

Europe's worst political jam, the Sudeten German problem of Czechoslovakia, has now become a high diplomatic one. So when William McElfain started across Europe to investigate the situation, he found the man on the street in Praha, and the native in the little German-speaking villages, as well as the statesman and party leader. Here is what he learned.

BY WILLIAM MCGAFFIN
Praha — Karl Schmidt and Josef Novak live side by side on one of the powder kegs of Europe — the German-populated section of Czechoslovakia — and they probably show less outward concern than anyone else connected with the situation.

Karl is a typical German villager. Josef a typical Czech. They not only look alike — short, stocky, rather large-headed — but they act alike.

Both seem to be good, solid citizens whose even temperaments enable them to live together peacefully, holding fists in check even when stirred as at present by tremendous emotions.

Going into Czechoslovakia to examine the mainstays of a situation that has given nightmares to peace lovers, I talked with a number of towns on the "language frontier" which divide the German-speaking from the Czech-speaking natives north of Praha.

I stopped at Roudnice, Doudy and Terezin on the Czech side, I went to Leitmeritz and Auscha on the German side, then drove deep into Sudeten territory to Haida, the famous glass-manufacturing town.

Karl and Josef were in neighboring villages in some instances, in the same village in others. But the story was always the same: "We get along all right together."

Some of the Karls and Josefs still meet for a glass of beer and a bit of gossip, although things aren't quite the same.

Some work side by side, then visit opposing political clubs at night.

If war should come, fighting doubtless would start in the very area where the Karl Schmidts live, for then still believe Czechoslovakia will be another Austria.

"Hitles will come and it will be all over in five minutes." Others, worried, are fatalistic, feeling there is nothing they can do, come what may.

Man In The Street
"Ask the man in the street," President Eduard Benes often urges his visitors, "what he would do if Czechoslovakia were invaded."

I did on the streets of Praha. And never once did the reply vary.

"I would fight," Nearly always the man in the street relates with pride "how we stood up to Hitler."

"Our little nation," he exults, "was the first in history to say 'no' to the dictators."

Some of the people feel that the May 21 mobilization of the Czech army by German troops began maneuvers on the other side of the border had its hoped-for effect and that the worst is over. Others feel they are just having a breathing spell, with more crises to come. But optimistic or pessimistic, they all carry on as usual.

"We are terribly worried," one girl told me, "but we do not show it. Well, should we sit home and cry? I think not."

They all have bought their gas money after German occupation and placed them in easy reach at home. And of an evening they stroll as usual down Vavelske Nam, with an army of newspapermen, visiting firemen, tourist schoolteachers, spies and adventurists attracted to Praha by the political situation.

The men tip their hats with a great flourish — as men used to do in old Vienna — and carry gloves in midsummer.

Health Officials Discuss District Sanitation Work

Various Phases of Program Explained at Meeting at Waupaca

Waupaca — The program of the sanitary districts in the state are largely along the lines of sanitation, communicable diseases, maternal and infant mortality reduction and other related public health problems. Dr. Allen Filek, Green Bay, director of the Sixth sanitary district, said in a talk at a meeting sponsored by the Waupaca county health committee at the courthouse Tuesday evening.

Dr. Filek discussed the history of public health in the United States and the organization of sanitary districts in the state.

Local health officials should act as educators, he said in explaining the reasons for health rules and regulations.

Theodore Wisniewski, district sanitary engineer, said the local health officer should have a complete knowledge of the sanitary conditions of his community such as public and private water supplies, methods of waste disposal, schools, beaches and swimming pools, industrial, recreational and tourist camps, hotels, restaurants, factories and general housing conditions. Motion pictures of the WPA rural sanitation work were shown.

Low Incidence
Dr. Milton Trautmann, venereal disease control officer of the state board of health, presented data on the venereal disease situation in the state which showed the incidence rate of syphilis in Wisconsin is much lower than that for the general population of the country. He said this is because Wisconsin inhabitants are highly literate and largely a stable and a rural population, because of the small Negro population in the state and because of the comprehensive program of the state for combating the disease.

"The way to stamp out the disease," Dr. Trautmann said, "is to find syphilis, treat all cases, treat every expectant mother who has had the disease and to teach the facts about the disease."

Miss Helen Grant, district public health nurse, discussed a material and nursing program and said that a nurse, by working in cooperation with the local physicians, can instruct mothers in simple rules of diet and hygiene and assist them in carrying out orders of the physician.

The procedure in getting suspicious cases of contagious disease under medical supervision to make it possible to control the diseases in their infancy was outlined by Miss Estelle Jung, Waupaca county nurse.

Wood Street Taxpayers Ask for Curb, Gutters

A petition for curbs and gutters under the city-wide WPA project was filed by property owners on N. Wood street between Eldorado street and North street today in city hall, according to Carl J. Beecher, city clerk. The petition, carrying the signatures of five taxpayers, will be considered by the city council at a meeting Wednesday.

G.O.P. Publishes Booklet of Quotations By Roosevelt for Use in Fall Campaigns

Washington — (P) — The Republican national committee has published a booklet of quotations by President Roosevelt in which it charged that "intellectual dishonesty permeates the entire fabric of the president's philosophy."

The quotations were taken, the committee said, from the president's published "public papers" and from newspaper accounts of his utterances.

The booklet is being distributed among party speakers and others for use in the Republican attack on the Democratic party in this fall's general election campaigns.

A preface declared that "many manifestly misleading or unfair statements will be found in the record."

"Obvious inconsistencies are in afraid of economic warfare. They still say they will fight it invaded. Is war, then, inevitable?" "No," they say, "we do not think so."

Red Cross Doctor Advises Pre-School Check for Children

Dr. William DeKleine, medical advisor to the American Red Cross, today advised parents to take their children to the doctor and dentist for a pre-school check to eliminate physical handicaps which might interfere with studies when the fall term opens.

He said common ailments such as defective teeth, defective vision and hearing and diseased tonsils and adenoids very often cause time lost from school. Dr. DeKleine stressed the advisability of vaccination against smallpox and immunization against diphtheria before the child is permitted to come into contact with groups of other children.

Cheese Institute Names 9 Men to Emergency Group

Wilbur Jacquot of Appleton Represents Independent Dealers

Milwaukee — (P) — In compliance with a Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets request, members of the National Cheese Institute, including Wisconsin and Chicago dealers, named yesterday nine representatives to a proposed emergency price-fixing committee.

Ralph Ammon, head of the state department, has said the committee was to "be ready for an emergency" in event the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange at Plymouth, Wis., ceased to function for one reason or other.

At yesterday's meeting at the Schroeder hotel, Harry H. Jack of Hortonville, Wis., a member of the state department of agriculture and markets, said it was possible in view of the present investigation of milk monopolies that the federal trade commission might take "drastic action" against the Wisconsin exchange.

The nine representatives named are in three classifications: Independent dealers — F. A. Cornelia of Plymouth, Wilbur Jacquot of Appleton, and John Kirkpatrick of Richland Center.

Processors — J. C. Christopherson and Charles Nye of Green Bay and Charles Eckburg of Plymouth.

The plan of the state department, it was explained, is to select one man from each of the above groups, the others to act as alternates, to sit on a seven-man price-fixing committee. Three producers and a seventh man to be named by the state department will comprise the remainder of the committee.

Observing that the sale of cheese has not kept up with the heavy production, yesterday's meeting, on formal motion of Barney Schreiber, Chicago, resolved to ask the federal government to buy a liberal quantity of cheese to help the present unsatisfactory situation.

Vander Meer Isn't First To Get Commercial Ideas

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—The Cincinnati Post reports that Johnny Vander Meer, the young athlete who pitched two no-hit games for the Reds, is demanding 50 per cent of the proceeds of newspaper and magazine articles in praise of himself for which he supplies the material.
Cincinnati papers are happily exempt from this charge, and he will gladly give them interviews free. This is a large leak in Vander Meer's commercialism, because there would seem to be nothing to prevent the use of laudatory matter intended for local consumption in articles for sale elsewhere. Idolatry is never libelous, and common knowledge in Cincinnati is common knowledge everywhere.
Nevertheless, certain Cincinnati newspaper writers are deeply hurt, feeling that Vander Meer has snapped at a hand extended to pet him and munched it clear up to the shoulder. Not overpaid at best, some of them have had a chance to make a few dollars spreading the fame of a hero, and the young man's demands would cut their ten-dollar and twenty-dollar fees in half.
The remainder would hardly pay them for their trouble, and the result would be a self-imposed embargo on Johnny Vander Meer unless the writers warmed over their local material and used it for the export trade. If this has not occurred to them, then ingenuity is on the decline in Cincinnati journalism.
Some of my colleagues seem to think that this is something new in commercialism, but I can assure them that Johnny Vander Meer is following distinguished precedent. Only recently President Roosevelt placed on sale as by-product of the distinguished office which he adorns the record of his conversations with the press and, only as an afterthought and apparently in response to criticism announced that the proceeds would be devoted to some public work.
Jess Willard, when he was heavyweight champion of the world, once declined to give your correspondent his thoughts on the eve of a struggle with Frank Moran, which turned out to be an exhibition of mass resistance on the ground that Mr. Hearst was paying him $50,000 a year for the exclusive right to this commodity. Greater thinkers have been paid less, but your correspondent had to admit that Mr. Willard's mother did not raise a foolish son in raising Jess when he said: "Why should I tell you what I think for nothing when Mr. Hearst is paying me $50,000 a year to tell him what I think?"
Pegler's Mother Didn't Raise Foolish Children
But your correspondent's mother did not raise any foolish children either, and in a subtle battle of wits between two intellectual titans, Mr. Willard was first diverted into trivialities, then exasperated into a discussion of his plan of battle which was presently given eternal permanence in the 5-star finals under a line which truthfully said that the following thoughts had been expressed at a late hour today "By Jess Willard." He had given away perhaps $5,000 worth of thought resenting a suggestion that Moran was braver, although, of course, the interview had been appraised at a somewhat smaller figure as collateral at Morgan's bank.
Some celebrities are just that way.
There was a mysterious woman witness in a murder case around here a few years ago who got $20 from a Hearst journalist for an exclusive signed story of what she had seen on the night of the carnage, and thereafter told a fresh version of what she had seen—all in a flash of lightning, incidentally—every night for about a week. The lady had never been in literature before, but she showed a distinct change of style from day to day, and she had the imagination of a born fictioneer.
Moreover, she had the business acumen of a Charles Dickens, for she always had to have the money in the pocket of her apron before she would tell each version of what she saw by the flash of lightning that night.

Papa Dionne Wasn't to be Caught Flat-Footed
Papa Dionne, whose sudden rise to celebrity might have caught a less wary man flat-footed, brilliantly foiled all who would have chiseled a profit from his own remarkable achievement without declaring him in. He was at his best, perhaps, in his colloquy with a refrigerator agent who wanted to install a magnificent ice machine, free, to cool the children's milk in return for a photograph of the quintuplets and papa admiring this miracle.
"But these machine," the agent argued, attempting pidgin French. "These machine, she's good for you and the infants. Good for you. Good. Good."
"Yeah," said Papa Dionne. "Pretty good for you, too, eh?"
But fame is fleeting, and perhaps in a year Johnny Vander Meer will be pleased to see his name in print, even in the fine type of the record books. When "Trudy" Ederle returned from her victory over the English channel it took hours to persuade Dudley Malone, her manager, to let her accept, free, a red roadster on which she had set her heart in return for her picture at the wheel of the same.
Dudley wouldn't think twice on the same proposition today. He might even accept a red roadster, free himself if approached with dignity.

Gerrits First to File Papers of Nomination
Arday E. Gerrits, Republican candidate for district attorney, is the first primary candidate to file nomination papers with John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk. The last date for filing is Aug. 9. Raymond P. Dohr, incumbent Democrat, and William Crow, Republican, are circulating nomination papers for the office.

4 Kimberly Youths Make Chicago Trip In 1919 Tin Lizzie

Four Kimberly youths took a 1919 "Tin Lizzie" on a trip to Chicago to see the shights and watch the Cubs play last weekend, covered 600 miles and returned without a major mishap.
The boys were Jack Sauter, Mark Wyngaard, Matt Vandenberg and Jack VanHimberger. They had a lot of confidence in their Model T but still were glad to limp home with their ancient machine.
"Nothing happened to the car except we burned out the low gear and had two flats and had to push her up a long hill north of Milwaukee and . . ." one of the boys explained.
Anyway, if something does go wrong with a Model T all you have to do is take the part out and throw it away or jump up and down on it a couple of times and put it back and everything's all right," another philosophized.
The boys made the trip to Chicago in about 64 hours and averaged about 35 miles an hour, 20 miles to the gallon.

Offer Cash, Earth To College Heads

Board Would Settle Obligation for Easement Received From Institution

The board of public works yesterday offered Lawrence college officials $4,000 in cash and 18,000 to 22,500 yards of earth to settle an obligation for the easement obtained from the college when intercepting sewers were built across college land.
The offer has not been approved by the common council, nor has it been accepted by the college pending council action. The proposal will be submitted to aldermen Wednesday evening.
The earth will be used as fill on college property along the Fox river where improvement work is being done by the Koepke Construction company. The cash settlement will pay for hauling the fill.
The board approved a resolution to apply for PWA aid to build a garage and storehouse at the Appleton Sewage Treatment plant. At present, the chemical buildings are being used for storage and the plant has no garage. The board also approved hiring of an office clerk at the plant for the summer months. Appleton, Minn., Blight On Postal Clerks' Lives

The similarity of city names—a postal plague that haunts mail clerks over the whole nation—is just as bothersome in Appleton as it is anywhere else, Postmaster Stephen Balliet said today.
Commenting on a report from Washington, D. C., to the effect that the likeness of city names cost the government postal department considerable care and cost each year, Balliet said: "Well, we have our troubles, too. Just about every day we get mail and packages addressed to people in Appleton, Minnesota. And it works the other way, too. For the post office at Appleton, Minnesota constantly must be on the watch for letters and parcels meant for our city."
The two post offices exchange telephone directories, Balliet said. Then, for example, if a letter is addressed to Appleton, Wisconsin, but the name and street address look rather foreign, the post office here can determine if it is really intended for the Minnesota city. And vice versa.
There are a few other Appletons in the United States, but they are not as numerous as the ones in Minnesota. There are a few other Appletons in the United States, but they are not as numerous as the ones in Minnesota. There are a few other Appletons in the United States, but they are not as numerous as the ones in Minnesota.
The similarity of city names almost drives the clerks throughout the land out of their cages. Take Cleveland, for instance. The nation has 26 besides the one in Ohio. And there are 28 Troys and 12 Birmingham.

Closed Section of Highway 41 Will be Reopened Next Week

Highway 41, which was closed for about three miles from McCarty's crossing north of Kaukauna to the Wrightstown road near the Brown county line to permit paving operations, will be reopened to traffic about the first week of August, according to a report of the division highway office at Green Bay.
Paving of the stretch of highway has been completed and work crews now are engaged in shouldering and other incidental work which follows the laying of concrete.
Traffic at present is being detoured over Highway 96 through Wrightstown.
Right now are: Homestead, Pa., and Honesdale, Pa.; Chico, Calif., and Chico, Calif.; Macon, Ill., and Macon, Ill.; Dillon, Mont., and Dillon, Mont.; Winona, Minn., and Winona, Minn.
It's hard to believe, but: More than 100,000 Americans didn't put any address on letters last year. They didn't in fact, write anything on the envelopes—just mailed them blank.

Final Income Tax Instalments are Due Next Monday

Delinquent Accounts to be Covered by Warrants After Period of Grace

Incoming mail has considerably increased during the last week at the assessor of incomes offices of the Wisconsin Tax commission at Appleton and Green Bay. Many individuals having paid the first installment on their state income taxes on March 15 are joining the last minute rush to make their final payment to avoid interest and penalties for delinquent payment.

Remittance must be received on or before Monday, Aug. 1, or the tax becomes delinquent and is subject to a penalty of 2 per cent per month. Delinquent taxes will be covered by warrants as soon as the 30-day allowance by statute has expired.

Warrants are being issued and served on taxpayers who have allowed their taxes to become delinquent, according to J. L. Tibbets, assessor of incomes. If the taxpayer allows his tax to become delinquent, he subjects himself to additional collection costs and may be subject to judgment for the amount of taxes, penalties, interest and costs due.

Milwaukee Unions Deny They'll Picket Circus

Milwaukee.—It was circus day in Milwaukee today, and both A. F. of L. and CIO labor unions made early disclaimers of any intention to picket the visiting Al G. Barnes and Sells-Floto units of the Ringling organization.

The circus had cancelled its scheduled appearance at Racine today, after announcement by the Racine Trades and Labor Council (A. F. of L.) it would picket the circus. The date was switched to Milwaukee, where the circus already had been booked for tomorrow and Sunday.

Acts formerly with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey circus, before it cancelled its summer program because an A. F. of L. union declined a 25 per cent wage cut, are with the units now touring Wisconsin. The circus was picketed July 19 at Janesville, where a man was injured when keepers drove two elephants into the crowd of pickets and spectators.

'Glacier Priest' Sails 700 Miles Without Encountering an Iceberg

Barrow, Alaska.—(U)—Father Bernard Hubbard, Alaska's "glacier priest," sailed 700 miles in a primitive 40-foot skin canoe through Bering sea and the Arctic ocean without encountering a single iceberg.

But, Father Hubbard said today, he and his party of eight men encountered such stormy weather on their 20-day voyage that they never would have survived if they had been in a more modern craft.

He recalled that 35 up-to-date ships had been wrecked on the hazardous shoals of Seahorse island, which lies along this route the glacier priest traveled from lonely King Island to his northernmost settlement of Alaska.

"After leaving Wainwright we skirted Seahorse island, where many a whaler was wrecked in past years," Father Hubbard said. "A new shoal forming out farther in the ocean from the island kicked up dangerous breakers and a sudden adverse wind buffeted the Comiak (native name for their craft) on the shore."

"We were afraid the keel would break and the walrus skin hull would be ripped. So we put an extra 22-horsepower outboard motor in the stern, and with the two motors chugging, the omiak and its four tons of cargo were steered to safety."

Hubbard's omiak was designed after the type of boats he believes Asiatics used to cross from Siberia to Alaska. The only modern touch was the two outboard motors in place of paddles.

Father Hubbard is sailing along the northern rim of Alaska as far as Canada to trace the linguistic similarities of the Eskimos in support of the theory American Indians and Eskimo migrated from Asia.

Socialists Want Turner to Run for Governor's Post

Nomination Papers in Circulation for Stockbridge Man

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison.—Calumet county may provide a second native son as a candidate for governor of Wisconsin this year, it appeared today as Wisconsin Socialists busily circulated nomination papers for one of their principal leaders, Glenn P. Turner, a native of Stockbridge where he was born 49 years ago, has been endorsed by the state Socialist party executive board as its candidate for governor to oppose Governor Phillip F. LaFollette. A second Calumet county product, Jerome Fox of Chilton, is the Democratic choice for governor.

Questioned here Thursday, Turner said that he had no official information that he has been endorsed by the Socialist executive board, but that he knows his papers are being circulated because he has received some in his mail. He added that he is circulating them, too.

Although he had not thought of running this year, he said that he will do so if the Socialists' endorsement is followed up with a nomination by the Farmer-Labor Progressive federation, whose state ticket is now rulerless with the refusal of its original gubernatorial choice, Theodore Dammann, to accept.

"May Run Anyway"

A moment later he remarked, "I may run anyway."

Running for office has become a custom for Mr. Turner. Long one of the most active organizers for the Socialist organization in Wisconsin, he has repeatedly been the party's candidate for high office, including supreme court justice three times and attorney general twice. A year ago he was defeated for the third time in his candidacy for the state supreme court by Justice Joseph Martin of Green Bay.

Aside from his habitual candidacies, Turner is an interesting personality. He is known from one corner of the state to the other as a persistent supporter of higher pensions, as a leader in organized farm and labor politics, as a prolific speaker and debater.

Perhaps his greatest period of public attention came a couple of years ago when he campaigned for a seat on the state's highest court with the declaration that if elected he would never agree to overturn an act passed by the legislature. Courts which veto legislative enactments on the grounds of unconstitutionality are usurping power, he held.

Fought Prohibition

Turner used to relish debates with the advocates of prohibition, particularly W. C. Dean, the capital city's indefatigable dry crusader. Once he stumbled Dean in a public debate with the announcement that if America is ever completely socialized, the government would take over the manufacture and distribution of liquor and that corn liquor would sell for ten cents a quart to workers who would earn $15,000 a year.

Socialization, he related, would end poverty with it the evil of those who drink because they are poor. It would end great wealth and those who drink because they are bored. And the government would sell liquor so cheaply that those who drink for the thrill of it would quit because there wouldn't be a thrill in drinking anymore.

He also believes in Esperanto, the universal language.

Although he is an interesting chap, and would enliven Wisconsin's campaign picture considerably.

It Is Said--

That anyone who thinks their roses are big and have a nice color should visit the Appleton Treatment plant where roses really grow to enormous sizes. Bushes planted this spring by the plant superintendent, C. O. Baetz, already are full of buds. Usually new rose bushes do not bud until the season after planting.

That when the 1938 Camp Onaway camp arrived at Onaway island yesterday for a 2-week stay, the youths found that the water was highest in years from the summer's unusually heavy rains. It is also rumored that mosquitoes are a little more in evidence than in former years.

That a woman witness appearing in a circuit court case this morning expressed considerable concern about a package entered as an exhibit in the case. She was assured that the court would see that the package was returned.

Jack Judge, Author of Famous Song, Credited With Helping Win World War

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York.—(U)—They say that Jack Judge, erstwhile fishmonger who has just died in his native England, helped win the World War with his immortal song, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary"—a favorite of the soldiers of every allied nation. That claim will be disputed by few of us who went through the war, and saw the Yankee doughboys and British tommyes and men of other lands come swinging along the winding roads of death and glory to the tune of "Tipperary."

Jack Judge's song made the "long way" easier for the boys, just as it brought pleasure to millions of simple hearts the world over.

This song was a "natural" for the troops. When you have said that, it is difficult to go on and explain why it had such a hold on their fancy. Certainly one thing that helped make it popular was the fact the lads could march to it.

If you have done a forced march through the clinging mud of Flanders, with a full kit and rifle on your back but no food in your belly, then you can appreciate the lift in Tipperary. The lads used to sing it, hum it, whistle it, and here and there some sturdy chap with plenty of wind would be pouring out his soul on a mouth-organ.

Still, there was more than that to Tipperary. It had at least two other qualities dear to every soldier's heart—it had the home-country and there was a dash of salty humor in applying the "long way" to those killing marches on weary feet. If a trooper can't learn to laugh at himself, he is in a bad way.

Council Argues Tavern Law but Grants No Permit

Committee to Meet Tonight on Proposed Changes in Ordinance

New London—The application of John Wagner of Appleton for a tavern license went ungranted last night as restrictions and conflicts in the city liquor ordinances interfered and ruffled the ire of aldermen at a special meeting called for the purpose.

Wagner has been waiting for 15 days to lapse after application to secure the license for the place formerly occupied by Abel's Bar. Before action was taken last night City Attorney Giles H. Putnam reported that two provisions of the city ordinance prevented granting the license.

One requires that the applicant be a resident of the city for one year previous and the other prohibiting a license to anyone for a place which has a record of two or more convictions on city or state violations. Neither provision is found in the state law governing taverns.

Members of the license committee complained that they expected the city attorney to have a new ordinance drafted and ready for the council last night so that the license could be granted legally. Putnam reminded them that the new ordinance, even if accepted, would be legal until after publication and that would be next week. "Besides," he said, "the committee couldn't agree on what they wanted in the new ordinance."

Wants New Law
William Lits came to the committee's defense and said that while he was not opposed to Wagner's application, he and others on the committee preferred an entire new ordinance to remove other defects and make it conform to state law and approved city regulations. Tavern operators also desired changes, he reported. Harry Emans joined Lits in strongly opposing the suggestion that two amendments be accepted now to allow Wagner to receive a permit and other changes made later if advisable.

It was finally agreed that the license committee meet at 7:30 this evening at Putnam's office to consider points for a whole new ordinance and that the city attorney present some sort of a draft at the council meeting called for Monday evening. Action will be taken Monday in time to make the publication date of the official city newspaper on Tuesday.

No Floodway Report
The floodway committee consisting of William Behm, A. R. Margraff and Lynn Springmire declined to report on the floodway project. The aldermen expressed a desire to meet informally with other members of the council to clear up numerous details.

The announcement of the new bridge construction was read and the finance committee urged to secure title to the L. E. Freeman property at the southwest corner of the site. Purchase of the small section for through right of way and some cost for construction easements will be the only expense to the city.

Edison	4	2

New London—The Edison softball squad found itself at the top of the Senior Men's loop last evening after defeating the Plywood in a sixth inning rout, 10 to 7.

The game was a close tilt until the Edison batters began swatting the ball and eight runs were chalked up, all on errors and one clean hit. Henry Fisher relieved Harold Roepeke on the Plywood mound with little success. Clarence Marks and the Edisons prevented a comeback in the seventh.

The Methodist Men threatened to take the Lutheran Team 2 but lost out in the sixth also, 18 to 16. The losers had a big lead with a 10-run spree in the second inning but the Lutherans caught up and passed them with nine runs in the sixth.

Next Tuesday evening the Edisons will tangle with Bordens and Lutheran 1 will tackle the Plywood.

Hoboes Lead Merry Chase But End Up in City Clink

New London—Two half-drunk hoboes stirred excitement in this town about the middle of the afternoon yesterday when one lifted a $150 personal movie camera from the photographic studio of Mrs. R. W. Hanson and led citizens and authorities on a 1-hour chase all over the city.

The two were finally caught and were still in the city jail today. The pair visited the Carter-Hanson studio yesterday afternoon and after annoying patrons one was seen to slip something under a heavy sweater he wore and make a hasty exit. Mrs. Hanson was warned and when she noticed her camera was gone she ran out to stop the suspects. They were seen walking south over the Pearl street bridge.

Jumps in Water
Enlisting Earl Miekleyjohn and his camera the two were traced to the railroad switch at S. Pearl street where the fugitives separated. E. M. Donner, city mail carrier, joined the hunting party and trailed the sweated individual into the woodpiles of the Plywood yard. To escape, the fellow jumped 20 feet into several feet of mud and water but they caught him as he came ashore. When he hit the water Donner said a large number of packages of cigarettes and gum burst from under his sweater.

The fellow denied he had the camera and slipped away again and hid. Cruising around for sight of him, Mrs. Hanson and Mr. Miekleyjohn tried the city athletic park, and of all things, found him there. The culprit cut across country towards the Wolf river again. At the ball park Miekleyjohn picked up Harold Markman who was playing tennis at the William Knapstein home and headed the runner off at the river. Markman, a former football star, downed the thief with a running tackle and quickly subdued him.

By this time the police were on the trail and the one was locked up. Seeking the other, the searching party inspected all box cars in the city and then combed the "jungles" along the tracks. Three hoboes were found and apprehended but two were released later.

While the chase was still hot one of the Quaintance boys returned the missing camera. He had found it at the end of a log pile in the Plywood yard.

No explanation was given for the pairing but it is believed by local Legion heads that insufficient teams were entered to provide regular competition and all-state eliminations will begin at once.

The club now has 241 members. Ten women attended the home economics meeting Tuesday afternoon at the village hall. The lesson was on curtains, draperies and handicraft work. The lesson for next Tuesday will be on ready-to-wear garments and household articles.

Fourteen members attended the Fairview 4-H club meeting Tuesday evening at the Melvin Sassman home at Seymour. The meeting opened by repeating the club pledge.

Miss Mahar and Chester Dumond of Appleton attended the meeting and assisted the club with their plans for the Seymour fair. A booth at the fair will be used to display their work.

Six members will exhibit dairy-ry, two sewing, three canning, one foods and nutrition and six gardening.

Propose Property Near City Hall as Post Office Site

New London Council De-fers Action on Petition Until Monday

New London—A petition asking the city council to offer the government the parcel of city land north of the city hall as a site for the new $83,000 federal post office building was presented to the common council at a special meeting last night. Action was deferred to a regular meeting called for Monday evening of next week.

The petition was signed by "patrons of the New London post office" and received the support of most of the large industries in the city through the signatures of the managing officials, and many prominent south side business men and land owners.

The petition suggested that the city lot, now used for parking purposes, and the adjacent William Dent property would make an ideal site for the new post office. Proceeds of the sale to the government could be used to purchase the Hatten land at the east end of N. Pearl street for a parking lot, according to the petition.

Discuss Parking
Aldermen considered the suggestion briefly and left further action until Monday's meeting while studying the plan in the meantime.

William Behm charged that the parking lot at the rear of the city hall is used mostly as a used car lot by nearby garages and that much larger and better lots could be purchased, notably the Hickey land known as the old fair grounds. When the council was reminded that the Hatten Lumber company declined to sell the N. Pearl street lots when they were sought several months ago, Mayor E. W. Wendlandt reported that the company was now making the section available for about $1,500.

A petition addressed to the government department has been circulated by south side business men and taxpayers asking for the building on the south side by virtue of the greater population.

Several south side sites are expected to be offered. Final bids for the location will be opened by the New London postmaster Friday, Aug. 5.

THE MAYTAG STRIKE

Some time ago the Maytag Company, a large manufacturer of washing machines located in Iowa, announced a 10 per cent wage reduction. A strike started and the plant closed down. After awhile about half the employees elected to accept the reduction and go to work. The remainder, by threats, violence and mass picketing, prevented the opening of the plant. Thereupon the sheriff swore in a small army of deputies and succeeded in opening a way through the pickets for the men who wanted to work, but conditions became sufficiently ugly that the Iowa governor, upon the request and advice of the sheriff, sent in the national guard to prevent extensive and destructive rioting.

In this situation the governor, through the national guard, took over the town, dispersed pickets, closed the plant, and at least prevented the further boiling of man's passions. Prior to sending in the national guard the governor had dispatched a so-called arbitration board, whose members he named, in the vain attempt to adjust the dispute by conciliation and compromise. After investigation this board agreed that the company was justified in making the reduction in wages.

It will be noted that the governor issued a declaration of martial law to reign over the town affected.

And it should not be forgotten that martial law, something like an Irish bull, is no law at all. And that no law at all is in fact a dictatorship.

Thus the governor of Iowa by a mere scratch of the pen has abolished the great structure so painfully constructed through the generations by means of which men have been able to find justice more often than through any other means.

And, another odd quirk, all law has thus been abandoned and abolished because we have been unable to date to complete our great structure whose purpose is the obtaining of justice by including a practical and efficient means of fairly and honestly settling controversies that have been prolonged to the Maytag point.

So we find that a governor in one of our populous and enlightened states has become the repository of all our rights, as powerful as any tyrant on the face of the earth. He may say "Close the plant" and the plant shall be closed. He may say "Open the plant," and lo, and it shall be opened. He may be actuated by high and lofty motives in his decision. And he may be actuated by mean and sordid ones.

Is this right now invoked in Iowa and proper under various state constitutions, a possible leak in our great dike? Is there danger of its extension by men crazed with ambition and mad for power? Certainly it has grave possibilities. When constitutions were written troubles of this sort were not anticipated. The power to declare martial law was included largely to handle situations where local government had broken down due to catastrophe such as the Chicago fire and the San Francisco earthquake, yet, pending the time when we more satisfactorily treat the cause of such outbreaks as threatened in Iowa the right may be a life-saver.

The constant danger of inviting any governor to take over dictatorial powers, and particularly in dispute such as the Maytag where the power assumed may easily be used by the governor to aggrandize himself, should speed the energies of the people in their search for just and practical means of solving disputes of the Maytag order.

Assume that in this Iowa situation 700 want to accept work, entirely satisfied that the cut was just and the company could do no better, and that 700 others were dissatisfied and determined to strike, what shall be done?

The theory is that the 700 who want to work may work and the 700 who want to strike may do so and appoint pickets for the purpose of "peacefully" urging the workers to abandon the plant. Put in practice the 700 who strike lose their tempers when the 700 who want to work decline to become convinced they ought to strike.

The Wagner Act, by its omissions, has inflamed this already sore point. With different sorts of unions, where there is necessity for but one, there develops, as at Maytag, bitter strife for power, leadership, and the right to run the workers' affairs. And when this strife becomes sufficiently stubborn and the clans involved are nearly of a size it means prolonged controversy, prolonged idleness, prolonged hardship, with a political dictator at the finish like a cherry in the cocktail.

We have many able and high-minded men in Congress but not enough of them at present with sufficient of that courage called intestines to grapple with this problem even though the method be called trial and error, keeping their minds always and ever upon the rights and benefits that may be secured for the workers and permitting the political future of certain labor leaders and labor organizations to remain secondary.

For certainly when a fair and secret ballot shows that a majority of the workers at any plant want one thing the methods of a lesser number when employed in rioting and intimidation should be submitted to something more than scrutiny.

THE FARMER BOY

Driving out on almost any road the man in the car may find himself behind a load of grain extended up fifteen or eighteen feet and bulging out so that side views are obscured.

Often on top of the load is a farmer lad of perhaps eighteen, brawny and watchful. As his slow-moving horses trudge along he guides and controls them easily with one hand while with the other he eases the way of the car driver by signalling him to go ahead or warning him to wait depending upon what he sees approaching from the other direction.

It is only a little act of courtesy but the great shore that withstands the pounding waves of the ocean is made up of little things too.

Doubtless the driver, free from the obstruction and plunging on his way ahead makes mental note of the courteous farm lad or waves his hand out the window in appreciation. But if he went into that boy's home he would more likely discover the cause of his helpfulness in the form of a parent teaching him to be useful and happy to know that his mind has been alert enough to make himself helpful to others.

It is a trait of good citizenship to cooperate with others when one finds himself so blessed that he may be of service, and it is one of those things that when once started travels with the extending area of a ripple and becomes copied on a widespread plan because people instinctively appreciate it.

On roads that are not overburdened with courtesies the farm lad these days is helping to bring the average up.

DELAYED DEATH

The element of suspense is certainly still one of the surest grounds for arousing human interest.

Suspense is the basis for any good work of fiction, any poem, any play. It has been said by philosophers that happiness exists only in the future because of the suspense involved in obtaining it.

If John Warde had gone to the seventeenth floor of the Gotham hotel in New York and jumped out of the window he would have received a notice in five lines on page 15 of most metropolitan papers, probably would not have been mentioned in the hundreds of smaller-city editions. But it took Warde 10 hours to make up his mind to take his own life, and meanwhile the sight of the man pacing up and down on the narrow ledge of the seventeenth floor drew a crowd of over 50,000 to the streets below.

The story rated streamer headlines in the nation's press, and Warde's death was flashed to the whole world when he finally leaped.

The out and out materialists will say that after creating such public interest Warde was a fool not to climb back to safety and capitalize on his fame.

But wasn't Warde acting in a foolish manner from the start? The man with a mania is short-circuited in his reasoning however much he tries, as did Warde, to "work this thing out."

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THAT WAS YESTERDAY:

There was a dark cloud
Across the baffling way.
My heart was heavy,
But that was yesterday!

The sun arises;
Today is here with gifts
Of faith and courage.
See how the darkness lifts!

Upon the highest
Branch of the maple tree,
A redbird pours out
His loving heart to me!

The future beckons,
And sunbeams flick the way...
Was I discouraged?
Ah, that was yesterday!

PAROLE AND CRIME

A startling indictment of the parole system in the United States is contained in the current issue of American Magazine. It is shown that the prevalent increase in paroles is flooding the country with a corresponding increase in crime, and habitual criminals are receiving preferred treatment while first offenders are serving out their term.

A survey by the American reveals that with one exception every federal agent killed by gangsters has been shot down by a paroled convict. Because of corruption in the parole system our gangsters and murderers get in and out of prison with startling rapidity. Quoting from an article:

"Parole is shot through with corruption. Politicians trade paroles for votes, pay off their obligations to those who put them in office by us-

Dale Harrison's
In Old New York

New York—Harry Bestry has been in show business for thirty-nine years—circuses, side-shows, minstrels, vaudeville, tab shows, stock, and plain old drummer. Mr. Bestry knows, therefore, whereof he speaks; and he speaks.

"It is high time," said Mr. Bestry, tapping my arm sharply with a pencil to make sure I got every word, "that producers awakened to the realization that there is a big public demand for stage talent. The producers keep throwing the same old faces at the public—good faces, I grant you, but old, nonetheless—and the public wants new faces."

Mr. Bestry is a booking agent. If you are a genius at anything from tap dancing to the singing of "M'Appari" in swing time, Mr. Bestry is the man whose job it is to find an outlet for your talent. Finding outlets is pretty difficult nowadays, he says, because the producers aren't cooperating as well as they might.

Not that he doesn't find outlets for hundreds of actors all of the time. His point is that there is more fine talent walking Broadway out of work today than there is at work.

Harry remembers when he played as many as 25 shows a day. That was in the sideshow. I neglected to ask him what his forte was, but I got the impression he may have been a barker. He did most everything, though. In his day he has been circus roustabout, minstrel man, and general all-around actor. He has been up and down the Mississippi on showboats. He has seen fire spit from pistols as river gamblers let their tempers get the best of them.

And here he is on the Twenty-second floor of the Paramount Building, with Times Square below and with the world's theater center all around him. And he wants more producers to believe as he does that the public is eager to see new faces and new talents.

I remarked that the public doubtless would be very happy to see and hear new comedians, and Harry's face clouded a little.

"There is a scarcity of comedians," he admitted. "There isn't much comic talent around; but if there were, I'm afraid most producers would be reluctant to use them. I had a hard time getting them to give Martha Raye a chance. They said the public wouldn't like her. You see what happened. It's that way all the time. New talent is hard to sell. Producers prefer to gamble on the established names—even if the veterans aren't always what they used to be."

Mr. Bestry thinks little Billy Rose is doing more to reopen theaters to new artists than any other Broadway producer; but Rose's surprising success in bringing back vaudeville in a night club setting has been marked almost entirely by the use of veteran talent—Durante, Pat Rooney, Nick Long, Jr., the Briants, Charles King, John Steele, Bert Wheeler, Frank Fay, Morton Downey, Aunt Jemima—all long established names in show business.

The booking agent brushes aside the suggestion that there has been inadequate training ground for youngsters with theatrical ambitions. He concedes that burlesque, which was the most prolific developer of talent, is gone, but he points out that hundreds of summer stock companies (in some sections of the south) tab shows are developing plenty of performers. All they need, Bestry adds, is a chance.

A local broadcaster has just completed a "Be Kind to Waitresses Week." I don't know exactly what the idea was. Neither, most likely, did anyone else.

Being kind to waitresses and waiters will put you in the red ink as fast as anything I know. I slipped a dollar tip to a waiter the other night and practically had to slink out, so balefully did he glare at what apparently was catalogued as miserliness.

Waiters are doing all right by themselves. In some of the moderate priced spots their earnings in tips will average better than $60 a week. That's being kind to waiters, as far as I'm concerned.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, July 27, 1928
Placing of structural steel on the new bridge under construction across the Fox river canal at Little Chute was well underway and the bridge was to be open to traffic within a week or 10 days.

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the planing mill of the Home Supply company at Kimberly early that morning. The loss was estimated in excess of $25,000.

Class E yachts owned by Frank Shattuck, J. C. Kimberly, and Jack Kimberly were to be sent to Green Lake Monday, July 30, to take part in a three-day series of races.

Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts, Thursday afternoon filed his nomination papers as a Republican candidate for reelection.

Under a storm of gloves that ripped his seams, Tom Heeneey of New Zealand, who plodded his way past all American challengers, crumbled Thursday night in the eleventh round of the 15-round battle he had earned with Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion.

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, Aug. 1, 1913
Dr. V. F. Marshall, Henry Russell, James O'Leary, the Geenen sisters, Elmer Renner and A. H. Gorges went to Oshkosh to take part in the Cadillac parade that the agency held. About 200 cars were included in the procession.

The county training school board elected J. E. Hale of Rice Lake as principal of the training school in place of Principal L. G. Schussman who had resigned to become city superintendent of schools at Kaukauna.

Roland Miller, son of Mrs. Etta Miller, 754 N. Division street, left that night for Chicago where he had accepted a position as chemist with the United States Gypsum company, a $10,000,000 corporation.

There were to be no more unpleasant disturbances made by drivers being cut out on automobiles and motorcycles as the council that morning passed an ordinance which provided a fine of from $2 to $25 for the party guilty of making noise of that nature.

ing their influence on parole boards. In many cases parole boards themselves are composed of politicians who must pass out favors. Paroles are 'fixed' with as little concern as one might go about fixing a parking ticket."

It is pointed out that in many instances the wrong men are set free by parole boards through the efforts of well meaning clergymen and welfare organizations that permit sentimentality to run away with their better judgment.

To support the conclusion that the wrong men get paroles, the writer cites such notorious cases as those of John Dillinger, Clyde Barrow, Clyde Stevens, and other paroled convicts who have killed federal agents during the last decade and who mowed down policemen in many communities in the United States.

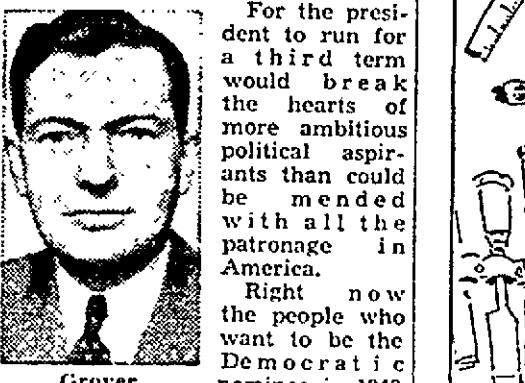

Records of 14,000 habitual and vicious criminals studied in the survey show that 5,000 of them had been paroled one to ten times. Among these were men who had murdered. Contrary to the public belief that murderers at least are kept behind the bars for life, official figures show that the average term for murder, because of the existent parole system, is three and a half years.—Topeka Daily Capital.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — At least one group of politicians would not like to see President Roosevelt run for a third term. They are the men with their own eyes on 1940.

For the president to run for a third term would break the hearts of more ambitious political aspirants than could be mended with all the patronage in America.

Right now the people who want to be the Democratic nominee in 1940 extend from McNutt in Manila to Barley in Paducah, with branch lines running excitedly in all directions to gather in the others.

And what might happen to them if President Roosevelt continued in office until 1944?

Take Mr. McNutt as an example. He is in his forties at present and would age some by 1944. But Mr. McNutt and his friends have been pointing him toward 1940 with such persistence that it would be hard to delay the climax of his boom until 1944. Besides, he might have to come to the United States to hunt a new job to keep himself in the limelight. It takes an awful lot of limelight to reach Manila.

As Good As New
The jobs open to an aspiring presidential candidate are limited. Mr. McNutt might spell off the time with a term as Indiana governor, but he already has been governor. He has one advantage over many another candidate, that he really is young enough to be available six years hence. If the president chose to put him in cold storage by appointing him to a cabinet post, he could be taken out in 1941 almost as good as new, and probably still smiling.

The same might be true of Senator Clark of Missouri, who also is young enough to wait. In fact, six years of additional age might not hurt more than one or two of the present possibilities.

They include Senator Barkley of Kentucky and Governor Happy Chandler of the same state, Senator Byrd of Virginia, Governor Earl of Pennsylvania, Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Secretary Wallace of Agriculture, Mayor LaGuardia of New York, Secretary Ickes of the Interior, Administrator Harry Hopkins of WPA, Vice President Garner, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, whose state organization already is tearing for him, Robert Jackson, solicitor general, and perhaps some more senators and more cabinet members and more governors.

Enter the Dark Horse

Numerical age and political age are marked off on different calendars. Years of languishing in wait for 1944 could do any number of things. Foremost possibility is that within that time the lightning might strike some newcomer unknown to the public.

It would be worse still for the hopes of these Democratic bids if the days of the New Deal should be numbered by 1944.

Moreover, dozens of congressional independents who have no thought of the presidency are hankering for a president a trifle less popular. Rolling along with Roosevelt is great if a congressman is 100 per cent with him, but far less than fun if he is not.

One certainty, demonstrated by support. Many observers here, however, are convinced that if Mr. Roosevelt doesn't like the way the New Deal is working in 1940 he will be ready to captain it until 1944.

Real Ranch
For Dudes

NORMAN, Okla.

Operating dude ranches are multiplying all over the holiday belt of the Rocky Mountain States, where hundreds of livestock farmers become technical dude ranchers by taking in a few boarders. Such ranches are vacation resorts for those who think they want to live the life of a cowboy.

"Operating" dude ranch is a cross between the dude ranch which is open only in Summer and the commercial cattle ranch which does not seek paying guests.

An operating dude ranch meets the need of city people for an outdoor holiday. It has clean, comfortable guest cabins, water systems and other accommodations, and at the same time has herds of cattle—thus operating as a livestock farm throughout the year.

Horse raisers and hog raisers and even sheep raisers also sometimes keep dudes along with their stock. Although there are still cowboys who would starve rather than eat lamb chops, some ranchers raise both cattle and sheep on the same dude ranch. This combination is enough to make the pioneer cattleman sit up in their graves.

According to the estimates of travel bureaus, during the past season about 20,000 persons spent vacations at dude ranches. At the operating variety everything is done to revive the traditions of the Old West. The wranglers and cowboys put on gay rodeo shirts, neckerchiefs, chaps, high-heeled boots and wide hats and wear them throughout the season—although it is disillusioning to learn that nowadays on many cattle ranches the cowpunchers work in mocassins and prairie hats for comfort, and never wear chaps except when riding through brush.

But regardless of the fact that many things on "operating" dude ranches are done for show, a holiday at such a resort is an interesting experience.

Guests Can "Help"

An old cattleman advises that if a tenderfoot wants realism he should take his vacation in the Fall and be on hand when the cowboys are busy with cattle instead of

Your Birthday

"LEO"

If July 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.; from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. until midnight.

Guard against overexerting yourself, mentally or physically this day. Subjecting your power of endurance to any severe test may be a mistake. You, or some close friend, may have a tendency this day to either say too much or too little, particularly in discussing a mutual friend's personal affairs; be careful in this respect. Moral obligations must not be disregarded, for if they are, legal entanglements may result. This is a day when frank statements and logical explanations are likely to be appreciated and receive satisfactory consideration. Prevailing auspicious conditions indicate that you might have a right to expect a very favorable change in what may now appear to you as serious problems. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are matrimonially ambitious, must be careful not to confuse rudeness with wit this day in an attempt to be funny.

If a woman and July 30 is your birthday, you are probably very energetic, perhaps athletic, with a preference for aquatic sports. You might be a convincing talker, and a fine public speaker. On matters of importance you probably act quickly and may become easily irritated if anyone shows a disposition to be dilatory or reluctant in making a decision. At times you may desire privacy, and may show your annoyance too plainly if it is denied you, so it might be well for you to try to adjust yourself to people and your environment. Beautiful clothing and cheerful surroundings may be two of your hobbies. As a musician, actress, writer, singer, sales agent, buyer, designer or artist your services should be in great demand and your income very substantial. Marriage may bring you many social advantages and unlimited happiness.

The child born on July 30, must be taught not to be impatient or too demanding. As a rule unusually clever with its hands, the youngster born on this date is apt to be very artistic or mechanically inclined. The world has much to offer in the way of opportunities to children born under Leo.

If a man and July 30 is your natal day, you can overcome difficulties if you make up your mind to do so. As an architect, author, lawyer, chemist, druggist, doctor, painter, author, actor, politician or salesman your future should be very bright.

Successful People Born on July 30:

dudes. A guest at such a time is permitted to "help" with the round-up or branding, or with repairing fences and irrigation ditches.

With luck the dude then might even see some brand blotting or cattle stealing, although the modern rustlers' method is to make night trips in unromantic trucks, kick yearlings, and sell the meat.

Pack trips into high altitudes are a recreational activity. Tents, shaped like Indian tepees but spaced like Pullman berths, are added. On other freight animals are tied panniers containing food and cooking utensils. But there is no space for chairs, medicine closets and bathtubs. And when a guide gets a group of dudes twenty-five miles up on a pack trail, they have to wait on themselves—for there is a scarcity of red caps, bellboys and maids.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

YES AND NO

Every little while I receive a letter from some one who asks a rhetorical question like this:

"If nothing is absorbed thru the skin why do doctors prescribe inunctions of mercury ointment?"

Or like this:

"In your zeal to prove your theories right and all other doctors are wrong, haven't you forgotten that you sometimes recommend a liniment to be applied to the skin?"

These and many similar questions were carefully considered before I ventured to express the conviction that no medicine, food, drug, chemical or poison is absorbed into the body thru the unbroken skin. My conviction about this is still absolute, and I am prepared to submit my own skin to a properly controlled test at any time, provided the representatives of the other side agree in advance that the outcome of the test shall be published and both sides shall accept it as final settlement of the question.

In the Jour. A. M. A. Feb. 5, 1938, Dr. David I. Macht published a report of some experiments he had made on white rats, mice and large animals, perhaps, tho the author is not very specific about the nature of the experiments. He is positive, however, in stating the conclusions he drew from the experiments. He asserts that many chemical constituents obtained from volatile oils or synthetically prepared were found to be absorbed rapidly thru the normal skin. He says the experiments showed that nicotine is rapidly absorbed thru the intact skin. He asserts that the experiments proved that such things as morphine, strychnine, acetic acid, atropine and pilocarpine, when dissolved in volatile oil such as oil of wintergreen, and applied to the unbroken skin of an animal, are rapidly absorbed.

Dr. Macht signally fails to describe how the mouse, for instance, was protected from inhaling any of the volatile oil solution of the drug when it was applied to the skin.

Indeed his entire thesis is a striking example of bumpstuf, self-sufficient "scientific" medicine gone wrong. The amazing contribution was given place as the leading article in the issue of the Journal. No doubt the Pooh-Bah plans to cite it as "scientific evidence" to refute any "queer notions" in his next diatribe about me and my annoying health column.

February, tho, is a long while ago. Here it is four months later. Medicine is making rapid strides. In the Jour. A. M. A. some incredible, unidentified "M. D." asked the Oracle whether a proprietary ointment or plaster intended for application to the chest has any remedial value in cases of bronchitis or pneumonia. The Oracle expatiates on the analysis of the preparation and concludes characteristically that "there appears to be no evidence that (the preparation) is an efficient means of producing the systemic effects of the various drugs which it contains."

That seems a little rough on Dr. Macht.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sway Back

I am 15 years old, and have what is called "lordosis" or sway back. I hike, run and skate a lot. Is there any way to correct this?

Caner Not Communicable

Please send me some instructions how to care for a cancer patient in the home, so as to avoid any possible transfer of the disease to others. (Mrs. C. P.)

Answer—Cancer is not communicable. Ordinary soap and water cleanliness is ample precaution against any infection. Send stamped addressed envelope for monograph on Home Sanitation.

Sand Eater

I am 72, in fine health. At the age of 34 to 38 I suffered a lot from indigestion. A railway master mechanic told me one of his engineers regularly took a teaspoonful of clean sand after each hearty meal. I tried it and have been taking it occasionally ever since. My brother-in-law, Dr. ...

shook his head and said it might cause cancer, but I'm still going strong, while another member of my family who never smoked, drank or took any sand succumbed to cancer several years ago. I report this merely because I thought it might interest you, in view of what you said about your father. (A. R. R.)

Answer—Thank you. It is interesting, but I don't know what it means. My father did eat sand like that for years. He died of sarcoma. Perhaps other readers have had experience with sand eating.

Chickens May Be Dumb

But They're Not Suckers

Oklahoma City, Okla. — (7) — If you think a chicken is "awful dumb" revise your estimate. They're smart enough not to eat poisoned grasshoppers.

F. E. Whitehead, entomologist at Oklahoma A. & M. college, experimented to determine if poisoned bran, fed to grasshoppers, had ill effects on fowl that might consume the "hoppers."

"A pen of chickens learned quickly that the 'hoppers' were attempted to feed them were poisoned and they would eat only the legs of the insects," he said. "When the rations were changed again and unpoisoned 'hoppers' were fed to them, the chickens ate them with gusto."

MONEY TO FIGHT CRICKETS

Elko, Nev. — (7) — More money will be necessary if Nevada crops are to be protected from the 1938 cricket plague, Lee Burge, state supervisor, reports.

By use of chemical dusting and galvanized iron fences several threatened areas have been effectively protected, he says, but funds have not permitted adequate control in less important agricultural sections.

The percentage of arrests of people under 21 years of age is increasing in London.

HOLLYWOOD

HAPPENINGS

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood — It's a day of clouds. Big cottony fluffs of cloud, edges gilded silver by the sun in a blue storm-cleaned sky.
The ground of the airport is soggy with intermittent, seemingly interminable rains. Over the mountains new storm clouds press wet and gray, and thunder rolls booming over the valley. But up there — 10,000 feet up — the clouds are white, the sky blue, and that is what counts.
The "Men With Wings" are going up. Their colorful planes — resplendent old Spads, Newports, Fokkers from the war days — await in trim formation. In the hangar, on a blackboard, William Wellman is diagramming the needed "shots." Closeups of fighting planes in battle action is what he wants.
Flying Director
Wellman's new air picture may be the one to end air pictures. It's in color — a cavalcade of aviation. His "Wings" ten years ago set a standard for air pictures since. The color is what intrigued him about this one. The big technicolor camera goes up on the camera plane, gets it all as it happens — "marvelous stuff," Wellman bubbles.
Odd, amazing chap, this Wellman they call "Wild Bill." One-tenth his energy and enthusiasm, harnessed, would solve a man's power problems. Lean, wiry, keen-eyed, he spits on "movie art" and makes pictures like "Nothing Sacred" — that shows he knows all about it — with a vigorous punch. He's a flier himself . . . from France's Black Cat escadrille in the war . . . and crazy enough to do the deeds he asks his men to do. The flying fool at the blackboard is Frank Clark. Not streamlining, dead-ringer for Gable; husky. Put a feather in his ear and Frank'll take off," Wellman says. Frank's leader of the flying lunatics who call themselves movie stunt fliers. He chalks out a maneuver. "Ever done this one, Tex?"
Tex Rankin, fat, red-faced, shag-tailed, squeaks up. It's how he talks. "Sure. A cameraman guy, me hell once for it—said he could feel the wind from my wings, but hell! I was ten feet from him all the time . . ."
Just A Laugh
They go up. They're making pictures. No "stock shots" in this one. There are no "stock shots" in color. From the ground we can see those planes, tiny at zooming, plus among the clouds, maneuvering for position. The camera plane splits a cloud, disappears, maneuvers back. . . . Wellman is dancing on the ground, yelling with excitement and admiration. . . . They're shooting it. . . . Power dives, tailspins, charges at the camera plane, upside down flying. . . . More than once they swallow their hearts. . . . That Rankin's at it again — the cameraman had on a hat, "Tex would knock it off!"
They're down again. They're piling out of the planes. They're grinning and laughing, lighting cigarettes. Must have been a good joke, up there. They want to know if the camera got it all. "All except that first shot — I was out of line," regretfully, "but I got plenty."
"Close call, that," Ha-ha-ha-ha! "Aw," says Tex Rankin, "I wasn't."

close—at least 12 feet off all the time." Ifa-ha-ha-ha-ha-ha!

But that's how they make aviation pictures, these fools with wings.

'Girl Scout' Fascination of New Buildings Lures Youngsters to Play Around Houses

Appleton contractors have no serious objections to children inspecting new homes that are under construction, but it does make them somewhat fretful to come to work the next morning and find tools and materials missing.

There's a certain fascination about piles of bricks, fresh, fragrant lumber, and newly dug holes that attract the youngsters. Usually they come in the early evenings, knowing that any appearance during the day might meet with resistance.

One crew building a new home in the city came to work one morning this week and found a goodly supply of siding lying on the edge of a ravine back of the lot. The kids had been doing some summer sliding, according to the contractor. There were also some bolts missing, and they had to be replaced.

The children don't commit any serious damage, contractors say, just sort of disorganize the place and quite often delay the next day's program. Occasionally they take home bricks and cinder blocks and pieces of lumber that have been carefully fitted for use in the homes. Sometimes even carpenter's tools disappear during the early-evening playing.

Police Chief George T. Prim pointed out today that there is danger of injury to children playing around residential construction projects. He warned against climbing on top of lumber or brick piles and scaffolding and venturing near excavations for foundations.

A scavenger hunt was the special morning event. Each patrol was given a list of 16 objects including insects, a tadpole, leaves, firewood, pebbles and other items, and at the end of the period Mary Lou Schilling's patrol had collected everything but the tadpole, thereby winning the prize.

Many Cook Lunches
Many of the girls cooked their lunches over the fire. Rest hour featured singing, quiet games and planned meetings in which the girls planned the farm skits for campfire. Handicraft, archery, badminton, deck tennis, volleyball, and softball were offered as afternoon activities.

For the campfire program, each patrol put on a skit pertaining to farm day. The skits included pantomimes of sayings or songs to be guessed by the audience. An original story, "Adventure on the Farm," was dramatized by one group, and dramatization of farm activities were given by another group. The campfire program ended with a goodnight circle and repeating of the Girl Scout promise and laws.

The day campers voted to have gypsy day next Tuesday, with the activities centered about the gypsy theme. Prizes will be given for the best costumes, and a treasure hunt will be held at Pierce park from 10 to 4 o'clock.

Miss Dorothy Calnin, local director, was in charge of the day camp, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Watson, Miss Edith Frampton, Mary Watson, Grace Watson, Peggy Givlie, Margaret Puth, Mary Koller, Mary Koehne and Margaret Walen.

RAIN INTERRUPTS OUTDOOR PROGRAM AT GARDNER DAM

BY BILL SPENGLER
Gardner Dam — Changeable weather Wednesday brought a varied program for scouts at the valley council camp.

When the morning rain began to fall, the staff decided to run a rainy day program, with an indoor track meet, ping-pong, checkers, shuffleboard, and other games. The rain suddenly ended, leaving plans up in the air.

During the morning's damp hours, activities centered in the Lodge, recreational center of the camp. Handicraft and games interested many. When the sun reappeared, scouts turned to riding and barrel golf.

At noon two hikes were announced, one to some mounds reputed to represent Indian graves. The other was an over-night fishing trip to the south branch of the Oconto river in search of trout.

The 14 who went to the mounds were Ralph Buesing, Bill Cherkasky and Tom Hendricks, Appleton; Edward Anderson, Peter Brahan, Pat Medam, Reid Schefelker, and Bob Spiegel, Clintonville, and Marvin Lampert, Bill Lawson, Neenah; Sousouras, and Don Quinn, Byron. Frogner acted as leader on this hike.

Dwelling Burns in Shawano County

Clintonville Firemen Save Mill Creek Cheese Factory
Clintonville — The Clintonville Fire department was summoned at 4:15 Thursday afternoon to the Mill Creek cheese factory, located in Shawano county, about 12 miles northwest of this city. The residence, about twenty feet from the factory, was burned to the ground and the firemen concentrated their efforts on the factory. They saved that structure as there was plenty of water available from a river about 300 feet distant.

It is reported that the upstairs of the fire was in flames by the time the fire was discovered. The telephone wire had burned by the time the call was placed to Clintonville, causing a delay in getting help on the scene. Much of the furniture was saved but the house is a total loss. The building is said to be about 45 years old. The property is owned by R. Kasper.

Mrs. Anton Bohr won the prize for low score at the weekly golf tournament for women of Riverside club, Thursday afternoon. She carded a 54 for nine holes. Two ladies of bridge were in play at the clubhouse, high honors going to Mrs. Clarence Barker. Luncheon was served to about 25 members by Mesdames J. H. Murphy, J. H. Devine and L. A. Heuer.

Neopit Meeting
Wednesday night Mr. Walter Dixon, camp director, and your reporter drove to Neopit on the Menominee Indian reservation for a meeting of men and boys to stir up scouting interest. It is the wish of the council to have a scout troop on the reservation.

Fifteen objects were sought during the scavenger hunt on Wednesday night's game program. Only one patrol, the Feet Bumons, was able to produce all of the list. These thorough lookers are Jim Beers, Shorewood, and Don Quinn, Bill Lawson, Bill Sousouras, and Marvin Lampert, Neenah.

24 Candidates in Primary Race for County, State Jobs

Office Aspirants Have Until Aug. 9 to File Nomination Papers

Neenah—With 24 candidates circulating nomination papers, electioneering in Winnebago county for the primary election Sept. 20 is already well underway. Candidates have until Aug. 9 to file papers.

With six office holders unopposed so far, it is indicated that the race this fall will be concentrated for the state senate job, assembly position in the second district, clerk of courts post and coroner's job.

All incumbents are seeking reelection and some of the major office holders who are unopposed are: Earl E. Fuller, Republican, county treasurer; George B. Young, Republican, register of deeds; Arthur E. Heckle, Republican, county clerk; Paul Neuberger, Republican, county sheriff; and Lewis C. Magnusen, Republican, district attorney.

Assembly Race Hot

The most hotly contested race will be the election for assemblyman for the second district. Seven candidates will seek election to the office which was vacated upon the death of Nels Larson, Neenah, with a Progressive and a Republican, and four from Neenah, two from the town of Neenah and one from Menasha are electioneering for the job which nets $12,000 a year. The contestants running on the Republican slate are Edward G. Sonnenberg, Menasha, Earl Hughes and John S. Grimes, town of Neenah, James C. Fritz and L. J. Pinkerton, Neenah, while William A. Druehl, Neenah, is listed on the Democratic ticket and A. C. Warren, Neenah, will run on the Progressive ticket.

There will be five candidates in the race for the state senate job, three of whom are Republicans and one Democrat. Pierce A. Morrissey, Rush Lake, is the incumbent, and he will seek reelection on the Democratic ticket. He will be opposed by the following: Rep. Morrissey, Taylor G. Brown, Oshkosh; J. W. Meigher, Winnebago; John A. Moore, Oshkosh and Robert Heckner, Menasha, a Democrat.

4 After County Job

The clerk of courts office also will be hotly contested this September with four candidates seeking the people's bid. Frank W. Schneider, Republican, is the incumbent. Walter H. Faust, Oshkosh, Republican, Ervin R. Veder, Oshkosh, Democrat, and Edward C. Abel, Oshkosh, Republican, are opposing Schneider.

Leo T. Niemuth, Oshkosh, incumbent assemblyman from the first district, is unopposed so far.

Martin A. Potratz, Neenah, former county coroner, again is seeking the job this fall. He will oppose G. A. Steele, incumbent, who will be running on a Republican ticket. Potratz will be included in the Progressive slate.

Rotarians Hear Rev. Walter Hall

Vision Is First Characteristic of Leader, Clergyman Says

Neenah—Outlining the qualities of leadership, the Rev. Walter Hall, Elo, Wis., told Rotarians at a noon meeting at the Valley Inn Thursday that the "first great characteristic of a leader is vision."

He listed the other characteristics necessary for leadership as "self-assurance, faculty of inspiring confidence in other people because he has confidence in himself, enthusiasm for folks, persistence and hope."

The minister pointed out that "we must have leaders in order to bring things about." Explaining the quality of vision in a leader, the Rev. Mr. Hall compared the Indian and the white man in their respect to visions of the trees, lightning and iron ore. "An Indian can follow a spear which is invisible to a white man, but when the white man saw large trees he converted them into lumber, and when he found the iron ore, he converted it into metal and when he saw the lightning, he thought of electricity. The Indian envisioned none of this."

Mr. Hall said, "Great inventors had vision, but they weren't leaders, because they didn't have self-assurance."

At the outset of his talk, the 80-year-old German pointed out that the symbol of the Rotary club, the wheel, is the symbol of civilization. He related that in an ancient era there was civilization but it was curtailed because the wheel hadn't been invented. "The invention of the wheel permitted civilization to progress," he said.

Neenah—Inauguration of a plan of financial drive publicity through pictures "that tell a story of the drive" of the Twin City Visiting Nurse association this fall, finance and publicity chairmen and committee members have decided this summer during frequent meetings at which plans for the week's intensive drive are outlined.

Mrs. D. W. Bergstrom, Jr., is chairman of the finance committee for the drive and Mrs. J. H. Kimberly heads the publicity committee. Believing that pictures showing some phase of the Visiting Nurse program, the personnel of its staff and directors' board, will tell an effective visual story to the public, the committee heads are completing the final arrangements for securing pictures and writing explanatory items preparatory to presentation, via newspaper columns, during the drive.

A tag day Oct. 8, will be another feature of the drive this fall as board and auxiliary members make plans to tag from 7:30 that morning until 7:30 in the evening, explaining the work of the association and accept any donation. The tag day feature was a suggestion from those desirous of assisting the association but who are unable to contribute $1 or more.

The drive will open officially Oct. 5 and close Oct. 12. A banquet probably at the Twin City Y. W. C. A. will be held the evening of the closing day, Oct. 12.

Mrs. Bergstrom's committee includes Mrs. Edmund Aylward, first vice-chairman, Mrs. Morace Du Bois, second vice-chairman, Mrs. D. L. Kimberly, Mrs. William Dowling, Mrs. A. C. Haselow, Mrs. G. W. Loomans, Mrs. Charles Sage, Mrs. Karl Mory and Mrs. Frank Whitte. Assisting Mrs. Kimberly are Mrs. Ernst Mahler, vice-chairman, Mrs. R. E. Thickens, Mrs. Marshall Smith, Mrs. Rufus Flom and Mrs. Kimberly Stuart.

YOUNGSTERS LEARN TO MAKE THEIR OWN TOYS

Neenah—Among the 90 children who are taking part in the arts and crafts classes conducted under the city playground program at Kimberly school manual training room are, left to right, first row, Ruth McCrary, Ella Lampert, Howard Jape, and Georgia Ann Schieler; second row, Lorraine Heyman and Karlene Gerold, and third row, Fred Wells, Robert Susdorf and Howard Peterson.

The students shown above are holding some of the trinkets and toys they have made in the classes. Classes are conducted for children of various age groups on four afternoons each week and the children make practically every type of trinket and toy which can be made out of wood and rubber. Florence Koepsel Oberreich, girls' playground director, is in charge of the classes, and she is assisted by Helen Stroebel, girls' playground leader, and John Kehl, WPA recreational leader. Dedicate, Occupy Courthouse, but it Isn't County's Yet

New $929,379 Building Hasn't Been Accepted By Committee

Neenah—Despite the fact that the new $929,379 Winnebago county courthouse has been duly dedicated and that all quarters with the exception of the sheriff's office and jail have been occupied by county officers, the courthouse doesn't belong to Winnebago county, at least not officially.

The new building has not been accepted by the Winnebago county courthouse committee and formal transfer of title to Winnebago county will not transpire for another three weeks or more when "final details" will have been cleared up.

In fact, construction on the new structure is not completed. For instance, Julius Sandstedt, architect's superintendent, explained today that the electricians have not made all connections and have not installed all outlets and wall plates which were called for in the contract. This work should be completed in a few days.

Transfer Equipment

Another bit of unfinished business is the transfer of old equipment from the old building. About $15,000 worth of equipment which was used in the old building has been rebuilt and repainted and will be installed in the new courthouse.

Further delay in the equipping of the sheriff's section on the top floor has been occasioned by the discovery that the 12-foot refrigerator is too large to be moved into the jail kitchen through an ordinary door. Solution: One of the doors leading to the kitchen will be removed. Within a few weeks the sheriff's department will be transferred to the new building.

Neenah Society

The Union Male Chorus of Neenah and Menasha presented a concert for patients and staff members of Sunnyview sanatorium Wednesday evening at the sanatorium. Instrumental selections also were presented during the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breaker, town of Neenah residents for the last 39 years who will move into a new home on Maple street in this city within the near future, were guests at a farewell party Tuesday evening when Mrs. Harry Tippler, Miss Helen Tippler and Mrs. Elmer Brockman entertained about 80 friends. The evening was spent playing cards.

Circle 6 of the Ladies society of St. Paul's English Lutheran church is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. William Swentner, Fifth street.

Plans for a picnic at Waupaca following in view of the phragmites there were discussed at the meeting of the Missionary society of Our Savior's Lutheran church Thursday afternoon in the church. Miss Dagmar Madsen presented a book report. A letter from Mrs. Alfred Jensen, wife of the former pastor, telling of the Jensen's family trip to Laurentz, N. Y., where the Rev. Mr. Jensen accepted a call, was read. Hostesses were Mrs. E. Jersild and Mrs. Sander Holverson.

Lady Eagles, meeting Thursday evening in Eagle hall, made plans for the drill team card party Friday evening, Aug. 5, in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. Balloting on seven new members was held. During the social hour, cards were played. Prizes in whist going to Mrs. Hatfield Williams, in bridge to Mrs. Barbara Steffensen and in schafkopf to Mrs. Addison Doane, Mrs. Alta Blohm and Mrs. Sadie Scherer.

90 Children Participate In Arts, Crafts Classes

Neenah—Entering the manual training department of Kimberly school of an afternoon, a stranger's first impression might be that he had strayed into a professional wood working shop which was functioning under peak production.

Further investigation, providing the stranger wouldn't have been frightened away by the hurly burly activity, would show, however, that it was just 90 children working in the arts and crafts classes conducted under the city playground program.

Florence Koepsel Oberreich, girls' playground director, is in charge of the classes, and Helen Stroebel, playground leader, and John Kehl, WPA recreational leader, are her assistants.

The arts and crafts classes are taught from 2 o'clock to 4 on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, and since the classes were started, the attendance has averaged between 80 and 90 boys and girls each day, the director pointed out.

Children Choose Work

The classes are conducted under a Montessori system, the children choosing the things they want to do. Mrs. Oberreich pointed out that this stimulates the youngsters' creative powers and opens their vision to designing.

Practically every kind of trinket which can be made from wood and rubber is manufactured by the children. Under the supervision of the three instructors, the children do all the work themselves, selecting their work from samples and following the original design. The youngsters even anticipate the needs for Christmas presents, although it is several months away, in doing their work.

The popularity of the arts and crafts classes is evidenced in the number of children attending. Classes are taught to boys and girls from eight to 10 years of age on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and to boys 11 and 12 years of age and girls 11 to 18 years of age on Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Variety of Articles

Among the trinkets made by the youngsters are corner brackets, bath brushes, book ends, door stops, napkin holders, necktie racks, weather vanes, thermometer holders, garden sticks, match holders, games, pictures, pencil holders, toy cradles, boats, letter holders, note books, banks, crayon and water colors and numerous other things.

Varied designs are made for each object. For instance, necktie racks are made into sailboats, anchors, horseshoes and arrows. Book ends take on versatile designs as well as many of the other trinkets.

Although somewhat limited, the children have enough material and instruments with which to do their work. Most of the things are made out of plywood and 1-inch pine as well as rubber and sheet cork. Three jig saws, one of which is of ancient vintage, burning pencils, paint, stain and carving tools are used.

New Scientific Books at Library

12 Volumes of Smithsonian Series are Placed on Shelves

Neenah—Twelve illustrated volumes of the Smithsonian Scientific series, edited by Charles Greeley Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution of Washington, have been placed on the shelves at the Neenah Public library, Miss May Hart, librarian, reported today.

The volumes are entitled, "The Sun and the Earth and Sky," "Mineral from Earth and Sky," "Insects, Their Ways and Means of Living," "Wild Animals in and out of the Zoo," "Man from the Farthest West," "Cold Blooded Vertebrates," "Warm Blooded Vertebrates," "Shelled Vertebrates," "Old and New Plant Life," "Great Inventors" and "North American Indians."

The librarian said that the series, formerly was comprised of annual reports which were too technical for the layman, but the present editions have been rewritten so as to be used by the average person.

"The books are intended to enlighten and interest the general reader and do not represent an attempt to summarize all science or even all branches of science. They will acquaint the reader with the organization, history and activities of the institution," the librarian reported. Principal features of the series are authentic and interesting illustrations, material, color reproduction and text figures, and emphasis throughout on man and his relations with natural science.

Memphis Political Machine Belittles That of New York

Lawrence Wonders If Senate Investigation Will Have Results This Time

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The senate committee investigating the congressional campaign has discovered something about Tennessee's election methods this year which is a surprise to hardly anyone in that state. For a long time, the people of Tennessee have been faced with conditions in the city of Memphis which make all the Democratic political machines of New York, Chicago, Kansas City and elsewhere seem almost virtuous by comparison.

When reading the senate committee's scathing denunciation of what is going on in this year in Tennessee in the senatorial contest, there came to mind immediately this correspondent's dispatch from Tennessee on Oct. 5, 1936, which read, in part, as follows:

"The story of Shelby county is well known all over the state. It has been investigated before by a committee of the United States senate, but this year all records for daring in election fixing were broken in the Democratic primary just a few weeks ago.

"Consider these facts:

"1. Burgin Dossett was running for the nomination for governor and had the endorsement of the two Democratic United States senators and the governor of Tennessee. He received throughout the state, with the exception of Shelby county, about 37 per cent of the vote. His opponent, the successful contestant, beat him in the ratio of about 2 to 1.

"2. In Shelby county, which includes the city of Memphis, Mr. Dossett was beaten by a ratio of about 60 to 1. In the entire county he received only 861 votes, while his opponent received 60,218. It must be borne in mind that Senator McKellar, who endorsed Mr. Dossett and lives in Memphis, must have had more strength than the three votes in his own precinct which were cast for him against 200 for the opposing candidate.

"3. Next there is the case of Harvey Hannah, running on the same day, Aug. 6, in the Democratic primary for member of the state utilities commission. For twenty-five years he has been in public service and is well known. He actually had a majority of 51,000 over his opponent, Leon Jourdan, in the entire state with the exception of Shelby county.

"4. When the Shelby county votes were sent in, it was found that Mr. Jourdan had 58,434 and Mr. Hannah only 1,068, as a result of which Mr. Hannah lost the nomination by 7,000 votes.

"Nowhere in the United States where election fixing goes on has any political boss dared to put out results that present such absurd ratios.

"The methods used in Memphis are described in official proceedings of a committee of the United States senate, which heard sworn testimony in October, 1930. Negroes are voted in large numbers. There is very little if any secrecy in the voting, which is often conducted on the sidewalks and not in booths. Voting is permitted without checking up to see if the voter is on the registration list. Dean John Randolph Neal of a law school in Knoxville, Tenn., testified that he saw Negroes march from one precinct to another and vote over and over again.

"Light Vote

"On Aug. 6 of this year, the same Dr. Neal visited Memphis and was told at many polling places that the vote was the lightest in years, probably not over 25 per cent of the registered voters, but when the returns were announced, the largest Democratic vote ever cast in Memphis was reported.

"For a long time, the city of Memphis has been dominated by a political boss. His word is law. He con-

Lord Runciman's Mission

PARIS, July 27. European rather than a merely German question.

Cautious man though he is, Mr. Chamberlain has had to accept the risks of sending Lord Runciman to Prague as mediator in the Nazi-Czech dispute. They are great risks. For on the outcome of this dispute more than on any other depends the issue of peace or war, immediately and for the future as well.

The Runciman mission, whatever the outcome, means that Britain is engaged in the fate of central Europe and that the policy of isolation from the Continent, or of commitments limited to western Europe, is no longer workable. It seemed very bold some years ago when Mr. Stanley Baldwin declared that Britain's frontier was on the Rhine; but today Mr. Chamberlain is compelled to recognize that Britain also has a frontier in Bohemia.

For Lord Runciman does not go to Prague in the role of an academic adviser who can, if his advice is disregarded, wash his hands of the consequences. His mission engages the power and the honor of the empire in the most difficult and dangerous issue of our time.

Czechoslovakia Problem At Point of Exploding

We may be sure that Mr. Chamberlain would be taking no such risks if any safer course were open to him. But the fact is that the problem of Czechoslovakia is on the point of exploding in the face of all the statesmen of Europe. It has reached a point where it would seem that even Hitler himself sees that events are beyond his control and that he may be dragged into a war which neither he nor his most responsible advisers can desire.

That surely is why he has been sending his personal representative, Captain Wiedemann, to London with assurances that he desires a peaceful solution. And that is why in spite of all the declarations against anything in the nature of an international solution when Germany's vital interests are concerned, Hitler is supporting a plan which makes the Czech-German controversy a trials the election machinery and local officials generally to whom appeal might ordinarily be made for protection of an honest ballot. Today he is closely allied with the Democratic rational organization and it is freely reported in the state that he expects to give Mr. Roosevelt out of Shelby county whatever majority is needed to make sure that Tennessee's electoral votes are cast for President Roosevelt.

It remains to be seen whether the senate investigating committee will carry through this time what senate committees have failed to do before when conditions in Tennessee have been brought to their attention. There have usually been plenty of denunciations, but very little action finally results. It is significant that the Roosevelt administration has played ball with the Memphis political machine right along and has not repudiated that machine's support of the New Deal.

provocative will be done right under his eyes.

Many Fear Hidden Purpose In Intervention

Beyond this breathing spell it is impossible to see very far. Lord Runciman is undertaking to find a solution of a problem which has every appearance of being insoluble. For that reason there are many who fear that there is a hidden purpose in the matter, and that Lord Runciman's task is to avoid war by delivering Czechoslovakia to Germany by gradual stages and by subtle devices. One must recognize the fact that there are influential elements both in France and England who are prepared to do this, who are prepared, that is to say, to let Hitler have his way if only he proceeds without too much obvious violence.

There are many who think that this is the inauguration of another scheme, similar to the non-intervention committee in Spain, which will permit Hitler to work his will behind a screen of formulae of impartiality. But this is, I think, an unnecessarily cynical view considering the fact that the issue is much clearer than it was in Spain, and that Lord Runciman has an aroused and alert public opinion to consider, as well as the fighting spirit of the Czechs and the vital interests of France. Above all there is the fact that here there is involved before the judgment of all the democracies of the world the personal honor of an English gentleman and the honor of the British people.

Though the moral condition of Europe has become progressively degraded, there is no reason to think that things are as yet so bad that the honor of Great Britain, when clearly and decisively engaged, is of no account.

Teachers' Institute To Be Held Aug. 25-26 At County Courthouse

Rural and state graded school teachers of Outagamie county will gather at the courthouse on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 25 and 26, for their annual institute, according to Henry J. VanStraten, county superintendent of schools, who is preparing for the meeting.

Beginning teachers and others who have not taught in the county will meet on Thursday morning. There will be no program in the afternoon. The general meeting of all teachers will be held Friday morning and afternoon.

It was to avert the crisis which was due within two weeks when the Czech-German negotiations broke down that Mr. Chamberlain, with French support, decided to intervene. Lord Runciman's mission promises at the least to give both the Germans and the Czechs something new to think about, to divert them for a time from the embittered realization that their differences are irreconcilable. Assuming as one must, that Hitler wishes to avoid a major war which involves Great Britain, the mere presence of Lord Runciman in Prague would seem to be a guarantee that nothing very

Traffic Slaughter Pace Slowed Down In 1st Six Months

Thirty-Eight Counties of State Report Fewer Fatalities

Thirty-eight of Wisconsin's 71 counties have reported fewer traffic fatalities for the first six months of 1938 than they reported in the corresponding first half of last year, according to the state highway commission.

Four counties, Sawyer, Marathon, Forest and Dane, had exactly the same number of traffic accidents during the six-month period of both years, while Bayfield, Pepin, Marquette, Green Lake and Crawford listed no fatalities for either the first half of 1937 or 1938.

Outagamie county had three fatalities to July 1 of this year as compared to 15 for the similar period of 1937. Brown county had seven this year as compared to thirteen for the period last year. Shawano county showed an increase from one last year to three this year. Waupaca showed a decrease from seven to four and Winnebago county a decrease from nine to two.

Every month of the first six of this year saw a reduction in fatalities for Wisconsin over the corresponding month of a year ago, resulting in the "saving" of 124 lives, as last year's slaughter pace was slowed down. June saw a reduction of nearly 44 per cent.

Outagamie county had no traffic deaths in June of this year.

King Carl Ends New York Giants' Losing Streak, 2-1

Turns in Twelfth Victory At Expense of St. Louis Cardinals

NEW YORK—(U)—Old reliable Carl Hubbell put a stop to the Giants' losing landslide yesterday. He gave up seven hits, pitched shutout ball for eight innings and defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1, to end the New Yorkers' five game losing streak.

Hubbell, who has been the only Giant pitcher to go the route since July 10, turned in his twelfth victory of the year in yesterday's tilt. The win left the Giants five games behind the National League leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

Not Ott's twenty-second homer, in the second inning, and Bob Seeds' run-producing two-bagger in the third gave the Giants their two runs. The only Cardinal tally was scored by Pepper Martin, whose third hit off Hubbell was a triple in the ninth. He came home on Ducky Medwick's infield out.

BUCCS LAID TO WIN

Philadelphia—(U)—After holding the league-leading Pirates to one hit for six innings, Al Hollingsworth blew up yesterday and Pittsburgh scored seven runs to beat the Phillies, 9 to 2.

With the Phils ahead, 2 to 1, through Spud Davis' single in the second and Chuck Klein's double in the fourth, Paul Waner started the Pirates big seventh by getting a base on balls.

Hollingsworth had the better of Jim Tobin in a pitching duel until he blew up. Tobin went on to hold the Phils to seven hits for his ninth victory.

Phil Weintraub, Phil's first sacker, was thrown out of the game in the second inning by Umpire Goetz. Weintraub led off with an apparent double to right center but was called out for not touching first. In a rage, Weintraub threw his cap and glove at the umpire.

FREY'S DOUBLE HELPS REDS

Boston—(U)—Linus Frey's two base smash with the bases full in the fourth inning yesterday gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4 to 2 victory over the Boston Bees and an even break in the current four game series. Frey's hit scored three mates and spoiled Bobby Reis' first start on the mound for Boston.

The Bees pulled up close in the eighth as Johnny Cooney tripled, Deb Gans doubled and Tony Cucinello singled to tally two runs. In the ninth Ival Goodman tripled and Ernie Lombardi sent him home with a scratch single. Billy Myers, Cincy shortstop, had a field day, accepting 12 chances without a bobbie.

Reis was stingy in the pinches, except in the fourth, when he gave up four hits in a row. He walked five men in the first three innings, but pulled out. It was Peaches Davis, sixth victory against as many losses.

'It's a Hot-and-Cold Club,' Says Gabby; His Shot in Arm Seems To Help Cubs

BY AURELIUS KINSEY
CHICAGO—(U)—A "hypo shot" into a "hot-and-cold club" was the first thing Charles Leo "Gabby" Hartnett thought about when he replaced Charley Grimm as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

The mere suggestion seemed to work because the Cubs trotted onto the diamond with their new manager and beat Brooklyn 5-2 in the first of a doubleheader and held the Dodgers to a 1-0 win in the second. A few days later the swept a 3-game series with the Giants.

All that seemed to strengthen some of Hartnett's views, aired shortly after P. K. Wrigley announced his appointment. "It's a hot-and-cold club," Gabby said. "And all I can hope for is that we can inject a hypo which will keep them hot all the time."

Then Hartnett hinted that the shot in the arm might jolt some of the boys. "I don't expect to ask for anything too tough," he declared. "But those guys have got to produce for me—and I mean produce. They've got to come through. I don't intend to ask anything outside of the ordinary. But I'm going to be tough."

"We'll have the same disciplinary rules," he continued. "Midnight curfew and so on. The only change will be that I'll stay up an hour later every night figuring out what pitchers I'll use."

He expects to ease up along other lines, however. "The only thing I'm going to change is morning practice," he said. "No more of that. Those who weren't in the regular lineup used to have to come out at 10:30 while the regulars came out at 12:20. From now on everybody will come out at 12:45 or 1 o'clock. It's too late in the season for morning practice, I believe."

Gabby was nicknamed that because he wasn't Gabby at all. It was at Catalina Island, Calif., back in 1922, when Hartnett first went to the Cubs' camp that someone kidded him because he seldom opened his mouth. They dubbed him "Gabby" and he's been so ever since.

"From the time they started calling me Gabby I decided I might as well be that way," he said. So now if Hartnett has an opinion to air he airs it aptly.

Charlie Grimm is out as manager and he walked out saying that "if Hartnett can't get a winner out of me I don't know who can. He knows plenty about baseball and handling a ball club."

Gabby is in and he went in saying, "It fulfills an ambition I've had ever since I reached the big leagues. I'm as happy as a kid with a new toy."

And—in the background—stands the silent figure of Tony Lazzeri, who was purchased from the New York Yanks last winter to be the Cubs' coach, strategist and utility second-baseman. Rumor had it that the taciturn Italian baseball veteran hoped to boss the big-league club some day.

Tony may, some day, but today it's the roaring Irishman, Gabby Hartnett, who is boss.

Valley League Gossip

A REAL battle is expected at Little Chute Sunday when Kaukauna Electric City Brewers invade the Chute park. The game will feature a family feud as Dago Schuler hurls for the Dutchmen and brother Eddie tosses for the Brewers. A record crowd is expected.

Joe Gossens came through with a rousing double with the bases loaded for Kaukauna at Neenah last week. He drove in three runs. Later he got another double to drive in another marker.

George Kosloski, the Menasha Falcon twirler, set Little Chute down with a single hit. He also fanned 15 batters.

Bob Cotton, Appleton, leading hitter in the league, connected only once Sunday but it was enough for he tripled with two runners on the sacks. Glen DeYoung, peppery catcher for Appleton, also won honors when he doubled to send two mates across the plate. Green Bay was the opponent.

Marvin Schuler, who is rounding into shape, showed his old form on the hill for Kaukauna Sunday when he replaced Guerts, starting twirler in the fifth and held the slugging Polish Falcons hitless.

Bill Noffke, Grand Chute, won a well deserved game when he turned back Oshkosh, first round champion, 2 to 1. He allowed only six hits. Noffke often has twirled good ball but his mates usually blow in the last minutes.

Abe Brokup hooked up with Radelet, Green Bay, in a hurling duel and came out on top. The Appleton hurler usually is stingy with hits and seldom allows over a half dozen.

Whenever Menasha Falcons win a game there is some member of the Kosloski family closely connected with the victory. Herb, the catcher of the family, homered for one of his team's three runs against Little Chute. S. Pauloski also connected for four bases.

Grudge battles are on tap for Sunday when Appleton meets Grand Chute at the Spencer street diamond. Kaukauna invades Little Chute. Oshkosh travels to Menasha and Neenah takes the hop to Green Bay. Grand Chute would like nothing more than to pull Appleton into a tie with it in the standings while Little Chute's season will be a success if it can down Kaukauna.

Busse, Kaukauna left fielder who has been hitting at a 370 clip, singled in four appearances Sunday. Another reason for Kaukauna's victories is three .400 plus hitters. They are Block, Gertz and Wurdlger.

Mueller, Appleton shortstop, scored all of his team's six runs Sunday. He counted two hits and a walk.

Eddie Gullickson, who formerly roamed the outfield in the Northern State league for Little Chute, is finding the Valley league tough. He has been hitting a mere .200 but still is a great flycatcher.

The nemesis of Lefty Kosloski in his bid for another no-hit game was Johnny Van Wymer who lined the only hit off George last Sunday. What makes it worse is that Van Wymer bats from the right side and his kind usually are considered easy meat for south-paw hurlers.

Indications are that Menasha will take the second half championship as it will have to lose two games and that appears impossible. Oshkosh has a chance to catch the Falcons as have Menasha, Kaukauna and Appleton.

CHICAGO HOSE LOSE TWO

Chicago—(U)—Boston's Red Sox moved within two games of the second place Cleveland Indians yesterday by slugging their way to a double victory over the Chicago White Sox, 1 to 8 and 8 to 5.

Boston won the first game, a battle of base hits, by scoring five times in the eighth inning and then five more in the tenth after the White Sox had tied it, Jimmy Foss, Ben Chapman and Joe Cronin of Boston and Boze Berger of Chicago hit home runs. It was Foss's twenty-eighth of the season.

Boston piled up 17 hits off three White Sox pitchers while Chicago nicked four Red Sox twirlers for 13 safeties.

In the second game, the Red Sox knocked Johnny Whitehead out of the box in the third inning and piled up a 7 to 1 lead that Chicago could not overcome. Jimmy Dykes hit a home run.

Night Games Have Pulled Brooklyn Out of the Red

BY EDDIE BREITZ
NEW YORK—(U)—Ambers and Armstrong may lay one of those great big eggs from a financial standpoint... In the four night games at Ebbets Field so far the well-known Dodgers have pulled in 117,369 fans and got the club out of the red.

Business is off 50 per cent at Tony Galento's joint since Tony has been laid up and can't get around to bellow greetings to the customers.

Charlie Grimm probably will have another big league connection next summer... Around Broadway they'll bet you John Henry Lewis doesn't get to first base in his proposed athletic commission, which is to say 'I'll never reach the courts'... After all, the commission merely told John he'd have to come in and fight a guy, or else — and John Henry rode the else... The Yanks are finding out rookie pitcher Steve Sundra can kill something beside egg omelets—same being a horsehide... Young Benji Riggs has unbeatened his prospects in no less than 18 tournaments this year already.

Lots of folk think Henry Armstrong has lost the boxing urge and will have to be made to fight from now on. Any way, he's been so low at Pompton Lakes Manager Eddie Mead has ordered him on the road... Some of the New York papers are blasting the boxing commission for refusing to recognize young Al Hostak... After all, they argue, it wasn't the kid's fault Steele got in bad by running out of a challenge from Oposoli.

Chafin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

YESTERDAY afternoon is one that will remember a long, long time. For it was the afternoon of the annual New London golf jamboree at Springvale course and we had a most enjoyable time and for the first time in our 30 some odd years we won something. Yes, sir, we won something, and not only that but it was a golf bag that really was a peach and would have been appreciated by any one of the more than 80 persons who took part.

Gordon Meiklejohn invited us over to the program and when we finally got started on our golf game we had a six-some which was composed of Charley Pond, Royall LaRose, Bob Kolf, Lee Miller and H. A. Baier, and it really was a combination. Bob and Lee are football coaches at Oshkosh State Teachers and Oshkosh High school, respectively, while Baier is in the restaurant business at Kaukauna.

And everyone in the party won something or had a chance. That was another feature. Charley came away with a small radio set, Bob got a suede jacket and a thermos bottle, Miller got some oil, Royall landed something and so did Baier.

Out on the course Bob shot the best golf and collected a few dimes from all of us. Which reminds me we still got a dime coming from Pond. Yeah, we won a hole on the second round when we got "hot" and scored two pars in a row. One started with a nice drive just a few feet from the green. It was for the benefit of Del Stacy. (He thinks we're good but he should have seen some of the other shots.)

There weren't any stunt holes or trick shots required of the entrants and if you've played Springvale before you know it's a splendid course. There isn't much rough except out of bounds, there are numerous short, tricky holes and a couple that delighted Bob Kolf for all he had to do was unwind a swing and let the ball sale a mile.

The greens were in top condition and one, the seventh, was the trickiest we've seen. It was like trying to sink a shot in a hole on one of those old slanting cellar doors we used to slide down when we were kids. Some of us shot for the cup and ended up farther away than when we started.

About the time we got started on the second round the boys had wound up an ancient Lizzie and tossed a half barrel of beer on board and started making the rounds. Then the fun began in earnest for the cut-put got all over the course and to some parts of it often.

The youngsters who handled the jitney were most accommodating but they poked fun of our golf. We showed how proficient we are (not) by bouncing a drive into the back of the bus as the lads dashed over the mounds and down the fairway.

However, the lads almost spoiled our whole afternoon. They told us John Walter of Green Bay was playing the course, too. And you know how we like John Walter. But after being somewhat irked for a while they admitted that the joke was on us and that we could continue, for Johnny's being around was just a bit of imagination.

After finishing our golf about quarter of 7 we had a rather hefty lunch and talked the holes all over again and then the drawing of prizes started. After that some of the chaps drifted away to go home or to the ball game at Clintonville and some hung around gosh only knows how long. But it was a good party, so why not.

Girl, 17, Swims From Denmark to Germany

Copenhagen—(U)—A 17-year-old Danish girl, Jenny Kammergaard, completed today a 28-mile swim of the Baltic sea between Denmark and Germany in the unofficial time of 40 hours and 20 minutes. She believes she is the first person to swim the Baltic.

She left Godser, the southern tip of Denmark, at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening (12 noon CST) and arrived at Nienhagen, near Warnemunde, at 11:20 this morning today (4:20 a. m. CST).

California Aces Dominate Tourney

2 Badger Players Left in Junior Division

Delafield—(U)—California players held five of the eight quarter-final berths in the Western Junior tennis tournament today after a day of play in which three seeded players went down in defeat.

The last Wisconsin entrant was eliminated from the juniors yesterday but two Badger players, Bobby Jake and Fred Ziemann of Milwaukee, battled their way into the quarter-finals of the boys' division. Jake defeated George Banta, Neenah, 6-1, 6-0.

Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, seeded No. 3 in the juniors, led the advance of the west coast netters in that class with a hard-fought 6-4, 5-7, 9-7 victory over Frank McHuer, of Salt Lake city.

David Freeman of Los Angeles, seeded No. 5, eliminated Richard Hainline, Jr., of Rock Island, Ill., 6-4, 6-1. Meritt Carlock of Los Angeles, seeded No. 6, defeated Sherwood Gorenstein of Milwaukee, 6-1, 7-5. Larry Dee of San Francisco, seeded No. 7, beat Paul Wilson of Ventura, Calif., 6-2, 6-0, and Jack Gurley of Sacramento, Calif., downed Jack Cella, eighth seeded player from Denver, 6-0, 7-5.

A sore thumb led Henry Picard to change from the overlapping grip to the interlocking and the subsequent success he achieved, has led many golfers to believe that in this grip lies the panacea for the ailing arm.

Gene Sarazen, however, who has used the grip enough years to give it a fair trial, claims the interlocking grip is not so good but is particularly suitable for players with short or stubby fingers.

The big advantage to be gained from this type of grip according to Gene is that it is next to impossible for the right hand to slip under the shaft and cause a smooth-er hook, an ailment not uncommon when the overlapping grip is used. Another golfer to recently gain fame with this type of grip is Reginald Whitcombe, newly crowned British Open champion.

Bobby Jones on the other hand used the overlapping grip and his record speaks for its efficiency. In the interlocking grip, the little finger of the right hand interlocks with the forefinger of the left. (Copyright, 1938, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Lardner Opposes Wehrle in State Golf Tournament

Former Champ Definitely On His Game; Semi-Finals Today

BY D. L. BRANNON
MILWAUKEE—(U)—A former champion definitely on his game was today's hurdle confronting Wilford Wehrle of Racine, in his defense of the Wisconsin amateur golf title.

In matching strokes with Lyn Lardner of Milwaukee, in the semi-finals, Wehrle is tackling a sharp-shooter so deadly that he needed one stroke less than par to cover 28 holes over the tough Milwaukee Country club course in two matches yesterday. Lardner was champion in 1932.

But in battling par, Wehrle did just as well—he also was one under perfect figures, and his second and third round matches went a total of 31 holes.

In the lower bracket, Gordon Kummer of Milwaukee tournament medalist who qualified with a 154, faced Burleigh Jacobs, the Wauwatosa youth whose game has won recognition throughout the Middle West.

Semi-Finals This Morning
The semi-finals were scheduled for 9 a.m., the morning round for 36 holes, the morning round to begin at 8 o'clock.

Policy of Safety Is Winning One

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Match - point duplicate players are called upon to make much closer decisions than are required at rubber bridge. At the latter game a broad policy of safety is a winning one. Thus, if vulnerable opponents bid a slam and you cannot be sure whether or not you can defeat it, but can be sure that a sacrifice bid by you will not be costly, it is quite logical to take the sacrifice. Perhaps you will lose 100 points, whereas the opponents would have lost 100 or 200 points at their contract. But this is not nearly as important as the possibility that they might have gained 1,500 points by your refusal to go down one trick. At match-point duplicate this "safety first" policy is not effective. There you must strive for the best theoretical result. If, as it turns out, the opponents cannot make their contract, it probably will be fatal for you to take a needless sacrifice. Note how this works out in a situation such as shown below:

East dealer.

East-West vulnerable

The biddings:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	2 diamonds	Pass	Pass

Under the vulnerability conditions West has a very difficult decision to make when South overcalls with two diamonds. The trouble is that West must decide, then and there, whether there is a game in the hand for himself and partner. Because if there isn't, he must not lose the opportunity to double two diamonds. With an original bid by East, and a two diamond overcall by South, West cannot expect any further bidding from the opponents, his own strength making such a contingency improbable. West can certainly expect to defeat a two diamond contract two tricks (300 points) and if his side can make no game the 300 points will be immeasurably superior to any part-score that can be attained. If East-West were not vulnerable, the justifiable hope of defeating the opponents 500 points would make a double highly attractive because, even if a game were in the hand for East-West, it would not count that much.

The vulnerability of East-West, however, makes the decision a split-second one. West must be haunted by the fear that, in doubling and accepting a penalty of 300 to 500 points, he is abandoning a possible 600 odd points. Yet, for good and sound reasons, the double is the best choice. Surely West cannot pass. If he bids, he must choose between two hearts and two trump, and neither is quite satisfactory. Two hearts, the strongest free raise West dare give, may not be strong enough to encourage East to bid again; two no trump may go wrong because of the lack of a spade stopper.

There is one other important factor; if West doubles, he does not conclusively abandon all chance for game because East may choose to take out the double. But, contrariwise, if West bids, he abandons all chance for a double. In the final analysis, it is this consideration that should induce West to double, rather than bid.

Hull's honeysuckle has attractive, fragrant flowers and is often recommended for growing on trellises or fences. It is useful for such purpose, but any one who plants it should keep in mind its vagrant characteristics. One good point in its favor, however, is the fact that it seems immune to the attacks of any enemy, even the Japanese beetle. It can be used where nothing else will grow, but only in sunlight. It does not like shade. Against it is the fact that its fruits are readily eaten by birds, with the result that the seeds are transported to new locations. It is a good plant to grow on banks or slopes where grass cannot be cut readily.

World Happiness Is In Hands of Mothers

BY DOROTHY DIX
Man's inhumanity to man, and especially woman's inhumanity to woman, that makes countless thousands mourn, as the poet says, is never so vividly illustrated as it is in the fact that mothers make no specific effort to teach their children how to be good husbands and wives.

The happiness of the world is virtually in the hands of mothers, since the misery occasioned by discordant marriages far outweighs all other human griefs, and it would be easy for women to dam this source of sorrow at its foundation were they so minded. Mothers could abolish unhappy marriages, stop divorce and assure every boy that he would get a good wife and every girl that she would secure the husband of her dreams.

And, considering that every mother desires above everything else the welfare of her children, it is strange that there is not some sort of concerted effort among them to improve the quality of husbands and wives for some other woman's children that they pray God on their knees that their own children will escape.

DOROTHY DIX
So that when their own boys and girls choose their mates they will not be so likely to get causes instead of blessings. Apparently, however, there is no reciprocity among mothers so far as their children go, and so we have the spectacle of women rearing the kind of husbands and wives for some other woman's children that they pray God on their knees that their own children will escape.

This attitude of mothers is more inexplicable because they all expect and desire their children to marry. They want their daughters to turn out successfully. No mother wants to see her children go through the agony and bitterness and scandal of divorce, yet in their whole teachings of their children they ignore the subject of marriage as completely as if they were no more likely to go to the altar than they were to go to the North Pole.

Every married woman knows the secret of what makes a happy marriage, and she knows that it is just as much a matter of manners as of morals; that it is the little things—the little politenesses, the little courtesies, the little justnesses, the little liberality, the words of thanks and appreciation—that keep a marriage a sound concern that pays dividends on all it costs. She also knows that the little amenities of matrimony do not come by nature, as Dogberry thought a knowledge of how to read and write did. They have to be taught or else learned in the hard school of experience.

Now, every woman knows exactly the kind of a husband she hopes her daughter will be lucky enough to get. She wants him to be kind, tender, affectionate, generous and domestic. But does she impress it upon her own son that he must treat his wife the way she wants Mary's husband to treat her? Not at all.

She doesn't tell him that he must not marry until he is ready to settle down and be a frisky companion; that he hasn't any right to marry a girl and dump her in a house to spend her evenings alone. She doesn't tell him that a man is a contemptible chiseler who doesn't give his wife an allowance and who holds out on her the money she earns a dozen times over. She doesn't tell him that it is just as much a husband's duty to feed his wife's soul as it is her body, and that he must never stop making love to her and telling her how wonderful she is. She doesn't tell him that it is just as much a husband's place to help make a happy home as it is the wife's; that he must not dump all of his grouches and say things to his wife that he wouldn't dare to say to the stenographer or the cook.

No, Mother does all she can to unfit her son for being a good husband by spoiling him to death, waiting on him hand and foot and catering to all of his little whims. Then she hands him over to some poor unfortunate girl who has to

Uncle Ray's Corner

The Life of John Muir

V—AN ADVENTURE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA
A steamer came to anchor at Fort Wrangell, in the "pan-handle" which forms a southern part of Alaska, on a July day in 1879. Seven passengers got off—three ministers, three ministers' wives, and a 41-year-old man with a reddish-brown beard.

The seventh passenger wore "a beautiful flowers, then crossed a great snowfield. Above the snowfield was the steep-sided rocky peak. As they climbed it, Muir made better speed than his companion. He was within a few hundred feet of the top—but out of sight—when he called back a warning to be careful of a certain place.

Young reached a "gash" in the rock about four feet wide, and at that point an accident took place. He stepped on a stone which gave way under him, and was thrown forward with great force. He put his hands out to break his fall, but sharp pains shot through his shoulders. He began to slide down a gravel-covered slope, toward the edge of a precipice. He tried to hold himself back, but it was no use. Bones in his shoulders had been dislocated—both of his arms had been pulled out of their sockets.

As well as he could, Young dug his toes into the gravel. He shouted for help. He pressed his chin into the gravel, but down, down he slid, feet foremost until at last he came to a halt, with his legs reaching over the edge of the precipice! At this moment, he heard Muir's voice, shouting "Grab that rock with your right hand and pull yourself back!"

Don't Make Child Jealous Of New Children in Family

BY ANGELO PATRI
"So, Sonny, your nose is out of joint, eh? Since little sister came you have to take a back seat. How do you like it? You're not all the world to your mother any more now, are you? Somebody else is her darling, eh? Well, that's the luck. You're out, that's all. I'll bet you wish she hadn't come around, don't you? What? Getting mad about it, are you? That's the boy. Don't you take it lying down. Give her a run for her money. You were here first."

It seems incredible that a grown up man, apparently intelligent, would torment a little child in such a fashion. Yet it is done, not to be cruel, "just to have some fun with the kid." The trouble is that the victim does not know the situation is funny. It is deadly serious to him, this being shunted to second place in his mother's affection. He is frightened, helpless, then angry. His anger is directed against the baby sister who has come to dislodge him, and that anger mounts as he finds himself without means of redress. He must put up with this affliction as best he may.

When a new baby comes into the family there is likely to be a feeling of restlessness and uncertainty in the other children. They hope they will mean as much to their parents as before, but they are not so sure and this bothers them greatly. For anybody to increase this uneasiness and fear is unthinkable. Only very thoughtless unknowing people would make such a mistake.

That sort of thought, once lodged in a child's mind, sticks. It worries him constantly. Maybe his mother has forgotten him. Maybe she isn't going to care about him any more. Then what will he do? If only this baby had not come. Perhaps father will remember him. No, father just patted him on the head and went right along. Nobody cares about him since this new one came. Uncle Henry said that would be the way.

The child broods; loses his appetite; loses his interest in play; doesn't want to go out; frets; loses his temper easily and begins to battle his way. This indicates a bad mental state. The health of the child's body is threatened, and along with it is the mental illness that is likely to set a habit of mind and behavior for years to come.

No child is to be teased about anything at any time, certainly not about losing his place in the family. Teasing is bullying, cruelty, that injures a child's whole future. We would protect a child against threat of illness, yet here is one that often goes unnoticed when it is not laughed at.

Prepare the children for the new baby that is to come. Teach them to welcome him, share with him, care for him and help to rear him in health and happiness. Whatever happens protect the children against fear, jealousy and teasing in relation to the newcomer.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

ORANGEADE

Many savage tribes have wonderful teeth in spite of the fact they never clean them and do not know what a tooth brush is. It is largely due to the plentiful use of fruits, the juices of which have a valuable cleansing effect.

"In recent years," a medical book goes on to state, "some dental authorities have advocated cleaning the teeth with fruit juices or food acids, such as diluted orange or vinegar, instead of the usual alkaline tooth powders. It is claimed that fruit acids promote the increased flow of saliva and in this way bring about a greater alkaline condition of the mouth within a few minutes. Saliva, as you know, is naturally alkaline. Furthermore fruit is somewhat antiseptic and is always healthful."

Eat Plenty of Fruit in Summer Time

When fruit is reasonable in price and plentiful you should eat much of it. Especially fruits with juices. And you should drink fruit juices without sugar to reap the greatest benefit and nourishment.

During the hottest of days one can easily dispense with meat menus if green vegetable salads with French dressing are eaten and quantities of fruit juices drunk. Such menus help greatly to alkalize the body and keep it cooler. By cutting down on calories you cool blood, for calories are definitely heat units.

Other Foods Promote Tooth Health

There is one factor in maintaining sound and healthy teeth which is commonly overlooked, especially while a child is growing. That is which foods tend to strengthen and prolong the life of teeth. If the diet is lacking in the elements for building teeth and bones, then decay and loss of teeth is almost inevitable.

Medical authorities commonly agree on certain foods rich in lime and organic mineral salts, such as whole wheat bread in preference to white bread; shredded wheat and whole grain products such as oatmeal will help to build strong healthy teeth. Milk and eggs are both rich in lime. And vegetables, eaten with the water in which they are cooked are strongly recommended.

Children and adults alike should eat natural foods, calling for exercise of the teeth and supplying all the elements provided by nature. And every child should be trained early in life in the care of the teeth and in mouth hygiene.

Lee Trones red lips curled scornfully. "I'll bite," she said. "What was I?"

Ratchford growled. "You're talking to the sheriff of this county now. I expect a civil answer."

"Very well," she answered. "I was not under the pepper tree when that man was killed."

"Where were you?"

"I was walking toward it from the rear of the outhouse."

Ankrom saw suspicion in the sheriff's glance. "Why?"

"It was warm inside and I wanted to get some air."

"Why did you happen to pick that pepper tree to head for?"

"I wanted to be alone. The shadows were dark there and I didn't think anyone would see me."

There were puzzled corrugations on the sheriff's forehead. "I have often felt like being alone, myself," he said. "But I can't see why you would want to be alone when old friends you hadn't seen for years had just arrived."

"I felt strange toward them. As old friends," Lee said simply. "I could not help feeling that they were strangers—and they were, you know." Her glance went to the girl who called herself Betty Struthers. "Why did you and that man practice this imposture on us?" she asked curiously.

A tear fell slowly from one moist, blue eye as the girl from Poco Pinto faced her hostess. "Miss Trone—you'll never forgive us. I know, but we knew the real colonel and his daughter. He had often told us of the Rafter T. I have always wanted to spend a summer on a ranch. Finally I persuaded father to impersonate—" she broke off and, turning her head away, put a handkerchief to her eyes.

Ankrom wondered if this were the truth. He felt strongly inclined to doubt it, for he knew the man she called her father was Kelton Dreen, and so far as he had ever heard, Kelton Dreen had no daughter. Then he recalled the place where first he'd seen this girl. No, he decided, this yarn was a lie. But the girl was a clever actress—

He saw the sheriff looking at her closely, saw the sudden frowning of Ratchford's brow. "Isn't

THE STORY SO FAR

Under the name of Abe Street-er, quick-fire Ankrom takes a job on the troubled Rafter T ranch to help lovely Lee Trone. Colonel Struthers and his daughter Betty come to visit, and Ankrom recognizes Struthers as an impostor. Kelton Dreen, Dreen is shot and Betty tells Ankrom she did it. Ratchford, the burly sheriff, questions them all, including Claydell, a neighboring rancher. Then he turns on Lee.

Chapter 15 Exposed

Lee Trones red lips curled scornfully. "I'll bite," she said. "What was I?"

Ratchford growled. "You're talking to the sheriff of this county now. I expect a civil answer."

"Very well," she answered. "I was not under the pepper tree when that man was killed."

"Where were you?"

"It was warm inside and I wanted to get some air."

"Why did you happen to pick that pepper tree to head for?"

"I wanted to be alone. The shadows were dark there and I didn't think anyone would see me."

There were puzzled corrugations on the sheriff's forehead. "I have often felt like being alone, myself," he said. "But I can't see why you would want to be alone when old friends you hadn't seen for years had just arrived."

"I felt strange toward them. As old friends," Lee said simply. "I could not help feeling that they were strangers—and they were, you know." Her glance went to the girl who called herself Betty Struthers. "Why did you and that man practice this imposture on us?" she asked curiously.

A tear fell slowly from one moist, blue eye as the girl from Poco Pinto faced her hostess. "Miss Trone—you'll never forgive us. I know, but we knew the real colonel and his daughter. He had often told us of the Rafter T. I have always wanted to spend a summer on a ranch. Finally I persuaded father to impersonate—" she broke off and, turning her head away, put a handkerchief to her eyes.

Ankrom wondered if this were the truth. He felt strongly inclined to doubt it, for he knew the man she called her father was Kelton Dreen, and so far as he had ever heard, Kelton Dreen had no daughter. Then he recalled the place where first he'd seen this girl. No, he decided, this yarn was a lie. But the girl was a clever actress—

this bogus colonel really Kelton Dreen, the Tombstone gambler?"

The golden head drooped lower. "Thought so!" the sheriff grunted. "Dreen," he told the others, "is that tinhorn that made a lot of brag about getting that shootin' fool, Blar Ankrom. Seems like Ankrom gunned this Dreen's cousin coupla years back, an' the gambler swore he's never rest till he evened the account."

"What's all that got to do with us?" Trone asked, pulling himself together. Ankrom saw that the fit of shaking had gone out of him.

"Mebbe nothing," the sheriff answered. "Then again it might have a whole heap to do with you. It all depends. . . ." He broke off to frown at Claydell who was grinning.

"He means," Claydell chuckled, "that one way of explainin' Dreen's presence on your ranch in any guise

"Button your lip, damn you!" Ratchford snarled.

The rancher returned the sheriff's glare with bland surprise. "Was I about to give state secrets away?"

"Some day," Ratchford's voice was deeply vibrant, "you're going to push me too far, Claydell. When that time comes you better have your holster greased."

"You remind me of a spoiled boy. When you can't have things all your own way you sulk. It's time you grew up."

A Warning

Before Ratchford could reply, Claydell went on:

"You may be the sheriff of this county, unfortunately, but that don't come anywhere near givin' you a corner on the conversation. Any time I feel the urge to break forth in speech, neither you nor all your sheep-herdin' deputies are going to hold me back. This here's a warning, Ratchford. You watch your step!"

While the sheriff stood spluttering with purple face, Claydell bowed to the others gratefully and took his leave, permitting his revolver to lay upon the floor where Ratchford's boot had shoved it. Perhaps Ankrom thought, he had forgotten the weapon. At any rate, he left without it and a few moments later his purring motor faced on the distant night.

Ankrom's abrupt laugh broke the silence Claydell's departure had left behind.

"What the hell you laughin' at?" Ratchford snarled.

"Laughin' at the way that fella curled you up an' left you gaspin'!" Ankrom chuckled.

"Oh, you are, are you? Well, you keep right on laughin' then while you got the chance. When you're all through I'll have a few things to say that'll give you an opportunity

Athletics Held to Four Hits as Fuel Squad Wins, 7 to 4

Kaukauna — Sherman Powers held the Athletics sluggers to four hits last night as the Mankosky Fuels went into undisputed possession of second place with a 7 to 4 win. It was Powers' second straight game in which he allowed only four hits. Warren Alger, on the mound for the losers, doled out ten safes.

Both teams scored in the second inning, the Fuels making one run and the Athletics two. Singles by Jim Mankosky and F. Cottoe sent Kiff Mankosky for the Fuels, and while Hurst's triple scored DeKoster and Ed Kaphingst for the Athletics.

Powers then held the Athletics scoreless for three innings while his mates picked up one in the fourth and two in the fifth. Abe Golden smacked a double with two gone in the fifth and dashed home on Cottoe's single. In the sixth Van Dusek was safe but was forced at second by Vic Gerhartz. Lee Lambie homered then propelled himself and Gerhartz around the circuit.

Tied in Sixth — The Athletics tied matters at 4-4 with a pair of runs in their half of the sixth. Warren Alger led off with a walk and Leo King fanned Ed Kaphingst walked and both he and Alger scored on Walsh's single.

The Fuels pushed over three runs in the first of the seventh for their final margin. Van Dusek singled and Lambie and Gerhartz walked, all three finally scoring on the Athletics miscues. The losers could do nothing in their part of the seventh. Ranquette and Stegeman popping out and Burton going down swinging.

Tonight the Kaukauna Klub clash with the north side C Y O. It was announced yesterday any team which cannot present a lineup by 6:15 must forfeit.

Committee Announces 'Prominent Speaker' Will Address Gathering

Kaukauna—A "prominent speaker" who will be of interest to everyone in the Fox river valley, has been secured to speak at the annual Labor day picnic Sept. 4 and 5, the committee announced yesterday. The name of the speaker, who was secured early in May because of the great demand for him, will be announced soon. He will speak Sunday afternoon at LaFollette park, Sept. 4.

Several changes are being made in the nature of the picnic grounds this year. New and different concessions will be at the park, and the free acts and other entertainment will be spread over the day instead of only at one hour.

The committee in charge of the picnic, headed by Robert Nielsen, has already started work to solicit floats and music for the affair. All committees are meeting at 7:30 tonight at LaFollette park to make plans, and will continue to meet every Friday night until the picnic.

New Baseball League Begins Play Next Week

Kaukauna — A junior baseball league has been formed and play will begin next week. Director Clifford H. Kemp said yesterday. Klubs, Green Bay Krafts Will Clash Under Lights

Kaukauna — The city's best softball team the Kaukauna Klub team will take the field under the lights tonight for a contest with the Krafts of Green Bay. Both the Klub and the Krafts were first half champions in their respective leagues. The Klub moreover haven't lost a game all season in league play.

Head Branchford of Appleton will be on the mound for the Klub at 8:15 tonight when the teams take the field. Branchford baffled the strong Forster Taverns of Appleton in a game here two weeks ago at the ball park.

Behind the bat will be John Niesz and at first base either Earl McNeil or Jim Judd. Don Van Able at second, Don Kobs at short and Art Koehne at third complete the infield. In the outer garden will roam Bill Kuenelmeister, Bud Fatio and Wilfred Van Able with Ed Eiting in the short centerfield spot.

The Klub haven't been doing much hitting this year but defensively they have few equals. Spectacular stops and catches have saved games for them when their hitting fell down, and there isn't a slow man on the team. Several hundred people have watched previous night ball games here and as many tickets have been sold for tonight's tilt.

to laugh on the other side of your mug!"

"Hop to it then. It's long past my bedtime and nothin' makes me so drowsy as this moonlight. My beauty sleep—"

"You know," growled Old Man Trone, cutting sharply into Ankrom's sentence, "that that fellow impersonating Colonel Struthers was a damned fake, sir! Why don't you expose him?"

Ankrom's face grew sober as he gazed into the stern face accusing eyes of Lee's father. "I was wauin," he answered, "to see how far the skunk would carry it."

He saw Lee's glance travel past him to the girl from Paso Pinto, whose head was still averted. "I think his brain was added by a pretty face," Lee said.

Hot color flowed through Ankrom's cheeks. "Perhaps it was," he told her quietly. "But you needn't worry about it happening again."

With a curt bow he turned on his heel and went striding toward the door.

Ratchford's voice came leaping after him: "C'm'ere! You trying to slide out on me like that? You better stick around!"

Ankrom, looking back, saw that Ratchford's hand was at his hip. He grinned coldly at the sheriff. "I expect that's your way of advisin' me to linger in this county. Well, don't fret yourself, I'll stay, all right. I guess you ain't used to my kind, brother. I belong to a breed that sticks to the last gasp."

"All right, Curly Wolfe," the sheriff glibbed. "You listen now. You saw me prove that this Struthers dude was really Kellon Dreen, the gambler. Dreen's been spendin' a heap of time in the last two years chasin' after one Blur Ankrom. This Ankrom killed Dreen's cousin in a gun fight. Now it seems to me it would put you in a awkward spot, seein' as how Dreen was killed here tonight, was I to prove that your real name's Blur Ankrom. That's some-thing for you to be mullin over while you're gettin' in that beauty sleep you mentioned."

With the sheriff's ominous words still coursing through his mind, Ankrom sat on the edge of his bunk several minutes later, bent double in the task of pulling off his boots. But suddenly his fingers ceased all operations. From the slope leading down from the ridge hemming the valley rang a wild rattlepatt of hoof-beats.

For one breathless second he sat there listening. Then with a bound he was on his feet and moving toward the open door with long swift strides. In the shadow outside the doorway he halted to gaze across the night. But no moving thing met his stare along the trail leading down from the ridge.

With hurried steps he moved to the rear of the bunkhouse. What he saw, stilled the breath in his throat, mured as he was in danger.

A forward-bent rider with flogging arm and flopping legs was tearing madly down the valley's rim. Ankrom's eyes glinted narrowly as he watched that crazy course.

It seemed impossible that horse and rider at that fearful pace should reach the valley's floor alive. His being quickened as the reckless saddle-slacker drove his rocketing mount across the stream. Between the buildings and straight across the yard they tore, the horse backing to a stop in a cloud of dust. Ankrom rounded the far corner of the bunkhouse. He heard the rider hit the dirt, saw him going toward the ranch-house's veranda at a staggering run, stiff-legged from long contact with the saddle.

Ankrom saw the ranchhouse door burst open; saw dark figures come spilling out across the porch like red ants from a burning log. They were snatched black against the front room's lighted windows so that by their shapes he could guess their identities. He heard the sheriff's low curse and Old Man Trone's excited voice hurling questions.

The runner stopped, stood swaying before the ranch-house steps as he fought for breath. There was a sob in the words that finally came. "Ratchford's boss—they've got that beef we had on the northwest range!"

Ankrom saw Trone's form shrink back as from a blow; saw a trembling hand come up to brush across his forehead. Trone's question came from the thickened throat. "Wiped clean . . ."

"Clean as a hound's tooth!" the puncher blurted.
